COOLIDGE WILL CALL GOVERNORS' PARLEY

Reparations Settlement In New Tangle

CUNO SPEECH PUTS MORE OBSTACLES IN PATH

General Air of Pessimism in London as Result of Defiant Words

BULLETIN

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Formal announcement was made by the foreign office this evening that the cabinet has approved the draft of a new reparations memorandum to France. It is understood, it leaves an opening for continuation of reparation negotiations with Paris. It had been reported earlier in the day that the cabinet had failed to reach any definite decision regarding reparations.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The defiant reichstag speech of Chancellor Cuno, of Germany, had put fresh obstacles in the way of reparations settlement when the British cabinet again met today to canvass the situation. There was a general air of pessimism and some officials expressed the fear that the task of reaching a solution might prove a hopeless one.

Chancellor Cuno's declaration that Germany would continue passive resistance in the Ruhr, coupled with the determined attitude of the pro-French members of the cabinet intensified the burden upon Premier Stanley Baldwin. The "die hards" as the pro-French officials are known, feel their position has been strengthened by the Cuno statement, with its challenge to France.

It is understood, however, that the premier and Lord Curzon are determined no further concession shall be made.

British newspapers took a gloomy view of the situation and stated it was unlikely the cabinet could reach a final decision at this time.

The contents of the proposed reparations memorandum to France were discussed informally. Officials frankly admitted they did not know what the next step would be.

'Swindler!' Is Cry

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—Passive resistance will be continued with all the strength of the German people "free from mad acts of violence and terror," and the people in the unoccupied territory will "support actively" those in the occupied regions, Chancellor Cuno asserted in addressing the Reichstag when it convened for a short extraordinary session.

When the Chancellor rose to begin his long address he was prevented from speaking for some time by the Communists who greeted him with epithets such as "traitor!" "swindler!" and "the president of the Stinnes Company's board is going to speak!"

Shakes Fist

One Communist Deputy got very excited, shook his fist at the Chancellor and was called to order twice. Herr Cuno was subjected to continual interruption during the speech, which was received somewhat coldly by the public.

"If there is no light on the horizon which promises us speedy help, then it is for us to keep alive by means of our own iron determination," said the Chancellor in his peroration, "and to make every sacrifice in this we must rely solely on ourselves. We stand alone and must and will help ourselves."

Chinese Train Bandit Victim Returns Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—Miss Lucy Aldridge, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and one of those held captive by Chinese train bandits, is preparing today to depart for the east, following her arrival from Hawaii. Miss Alridge declares the 36 hours she was held captive had no ill effect on her health.

Senator Moses Launches Boom For Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—An unofficial boom to make President Calvin Coolidge the republican nominee in the 1924 presidential campaign was launched here this afternoon by Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee. After his visit to the president in the presidential suite at the Willard, Senator Moses said he was going to return to his New Hampshire home to issue a statement "Calling on all New England to back President Coolidge for a second term."

"My interview with the president was very satisfactory," he said.

With his known antipathy to the Harding world court program and his career as a "last ditch" irreconciliable in the Senate, Moses' enthusiasm was taken to indicate that President Coolidge had informed him the world court would not be pressed by the new administration. Moses enthusiastically indorsed the president. He praised the chief executive's administration as governor of Massachusetts and predicted success for him in the presidency.

"I am going back to New Hampshire tonight and I am going to issue a statement Saturday calling on all the people in New England to get behind Calvin Coolidge for the Republican presidential nomination in 1924," Moses said.

APARTMENT HOUSE OF SIX STORIES, TO COST $400,000, WILL BE BUILT AT CENTRAL AND WEST BROADWAY

Charles B. Guthrie, Owner Of Corner, Makes Announcement Of Big Improvement; Buys Additional Lot for Building; Southwest Corner Broadway and Central Ave. Sells for $52,000

A $400,000 six-story E type brick and stucco apartment house will be erected at the northwest corner of Central avenue and Broadway, if present plans carry, announces Charles B. Guthrie, realtor, of 110 West Broadway, who owns the property at that location. In order to facilitate a construction program of this magnitude, Mr. Guthrie has purchased from Mrs. Mary Payne the lot adjoining his corner lot on North Central avenue. This lot and the other are both 53x135 feet.

The plans call for utilization of both lots in erecting the apartment house, which will be the largest such structure in Glendale.

The property will be leased to the interests erecting the apartment house, Mr. Guthrie states, the total consideration over a period of ninety-nine years exceeding $1,000,000.

The southwest corner of Central avenue and Broadway, directly across from the site of the proposed large apartment house, has been sold by A. P. Offutt for $52,000, it is reported, and is a further indication of the intensive development planned for this section.

"The corner of Central avenue and Broadway is destined to become as important in the apartment house life of this city as is the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, in the city's business life," says Mr. Guthrie. "And, in fact, all of Central avenue from the foothills to the gateway of Glendale is slated for rapid development.

"It is the one logical street in this city for the high class apartment houses and bungalow courts that must be built by the scores in the next year or two, to keep pace with the phenomenal growth we are enjoying.

"Great plans are under way for the development of Central avenue, running the length of the city, midway between the business and industrial sections, straight as an arrow, from Kenneth road on the north to Los Feliz on the south."

INVITE HAYS TO HEAD FILM ASSN.

Industry in Hollywood to Be Reorganized Along New Lines, Is Plan

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 9.—Will Hays, "Czar of the movies," as head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, has been asked to come to Hollywood and take over the reins of the industry. Courtney Smith, secretary to the organization, was to leave here today to lay the request before Mr. Hays.

It also became known today that plans for the dissolution of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, the resignation of W. J. Reynolds, secretary to that body, and tentative plans for film censorship changes, were under consideration. The financial failure of the motion picture exposition which closed here the first of this week is said to have brought these moves.

Before leaving for the east today to confer with Mr. Hays, Smith refused to discuss the "shake up," saying only that if Mr. Hays accepts he will pass as much time here as possible, but that his headquarters would be in the east. If Mr. Hays is persuaded to take complete charge of the Motion Picture Producers' Association he would determine such questions as permitting visitors to studios, organize a distribution group for all charity moneys, have a secret card index with data concerning every actor and actress, their salaries and other confidential information.

Definite steps to dissolve the Motion Picture Producers' Association are said to have been taken in a hurriedly called session in Hollywood. Legal action was mapped out to render the association important and place its welfare in the hands of the Hays' organization, it was learned. Plans for a revised censorship are also said to have been discussed.

Wrecked Ship May Be Missing S. F. Schooner

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—Fear is felt in local shipping circles today that the capsized four-masted schooner sighted yesterday off the Washington coast is the Alta, of this port, missing since February with thirty-five souls aboard, on a voyage usually requiring twenty-two days.

The Alta sailed from San Pedro for Bellingham. The hulk was sighted by a halibut schooner. Captain Sexton, his wife and two children and a crew of thirty-one men were on the Alta when she left port.

FRED DEAL USES TWO BABIES, DIME TO FIND GLASSES

Phone Magnate Proves He Has Detective Mind And Some Sense

Fred Deal, manager of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company here, lost his glasses. Later he found them and thereby hangs a tale of two babies we will call Snookums and Snoodles.

About ten days ago Snookums and her parents were visitors at the Deal home, 321 North Kenwood street. The young lady affectionately removed Mr. Deal's eyeglasses and that apparently was the end of them.

Mrs. Deal telephoned the baby's mother asking if the child perchance had swallowed the cheaters, but measurement of the mouth made them believe such was impossible. Meantime the Deal home had been turned upside down in the search for the foresight of the telephone manager.

A week later Snoodles, the son of another couple of friends, was a guest in the home. He extracted a dime from the pocket of Mr. Deal, who decided to keep watch on what children did with articles that were likely to be lost.

Sure enough, Snoodles acted according to Hoyle. He got the dime lost in the overstuffed furniture of the living room. And in recovering the dime the secret hiding place of the glasses was revealed.

'Keep the dime", said Mr. Deal generously to Snoodles.

"Da da", chortled the kiddie.

And that's that.

Factory Fire Causes Damages of $350,000

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Damage estimated at $350,000 was done early today by a fire which attacked the seven buildings comprising the plant of Alfred Schwil & company, manufacturers, leveling a two-story brick structure and damaging other buildings.

Firemen were hampered by finding their path to the flaming buildings blocked by a string of freight cars which had to be removed before the fire fighting apparatus could be brought into action.

Ohio People in Final Tribute to Harding

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Twenty thousand persons from Canton and surrounding towns paid reverent tribute to the late president, Warren G. Harding, as the funeral train passed through Canton at 9:15 o'clock, Eastern time.

FOREST FIRE IS BEYOND CONTROL

More Than 20,000 Acres Are Already Burned Over In National Reserve

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—Burning more furiously and faster than any time since it started, several days ago, the forest fire in the Santa Barbara national forest reserve has crept over McKinley peak into the Lazarra and Peach Tree canyons, according to word received here today.

More than 20,000 acres have already been burned over. Only a change in wind will save forests between the advancing flames and Sunset valley, Mount McKinley and Santa Cruz mountain. At the same time a stiff breeze was blowing from the east, increasing the work of the fire fighters to curb the conflagration.

Beyond Control

The fire is menacing the Santa Ynez river region, and, if it continues, will endanger several large ranches, as well as wide acreages of timber. The San Marcos Pass ranch is one of those in the path of the flames, unless they are checked.

Forest supervisor Jordan was on the scene today and was said to have admitted the flames are beyond the power of man to check.

Panic Follows Pistol Battle in Courtroom

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Scores of men and women in Washington Heights district were thrown into wild panic today by a shooting affray which claimed two lives. Norman Roberts, 30-year-old negro, was shot to death by the police after he had fired five bullets in the body of his wife, Nellie Roberts, killing her.

The woman had obtained a summons for her husband. As he reached the corridor of the court he saw his wife, and a heated argument followed. Suddenly drawing a revolver, Roberts began firing at his wife, at close range. She fell, but Roberts continued to shoot. Pandemonium broke loose in the court. There was a wild scramble for the doorways, while men fought each other in their haste. Women screamed and fainted.

Policemen made for Roberts, who began firing at them. The policemen returned the fire, wounding the negro. He died from the effects of three bullets which entered his body. A negro policeman fired the shot that ended Roberts' life. Excitement was so intense, police reserves had to be summoned to restore order.

HOME STATE DOES HONOR TO WARREN HARDING

No Pomp, No Booming Guns, No Gold Braid, Just Lots Of Real Reverence

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

ON BOARD HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO MARION, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Warren G. Harding came back home today.

The nation that has claimed his flag-wrapped body since his tragic death on the far west coast a week ago and spanned a continent with homage unprecedented in the history of the country, gave him back today to his own Ohio.

And Ohio received him with wide open arms, as is befitting an honored and well-loved son long gone from the hearth. There was no clatter of arms, no show of military, no booming of guns, no gold braid and tinsel today.

When the twenty-ninth president came back to sleep forever in the soil that gave him birth there was, as dawn stole over the eastern horizon, a silent display of reverential regard or real sadness from the Ohioans that lined his homeward trail that was more poignant than the most glittering display of pomp and power.

Tribute to McKinley

The funeral train made a special stop of one minute at Canton as a mark of respect for President McKinley who is buried here. When the train reached Canton it was an hour and forty minutes late and it seemed probable that it would be three hours late getting into Marion.

Yesterday Warren G. Harding belonged to the nation, and to the myriad thousands who followed his corpse on its long sad journey from the White House to the national shrine beneath the great dome of the capitol building at Washington.

Today he belonged only to the saddened woman in black who is retracing in sorrow today the trail so joyously taken nine years ago when life was brightest and the heights beckoned from afar. Today to Ohio and particularly to Marion, which he helped to build, and who saw his struggle upward from an editorial chair from a newspaper to the chief executive of a great and free people. The grief that is Marion's today but reflects that of all Ohio and was so eloquently illustrated by throngs of sorrowing people who came out in the early morning to stand silent and uncovered by his train from the time it crossed the homeland border.

Cabinet Officers There

And yet the grief and reverence that is inherent in the American heart for a departed leader would not allow the remains of a dead president to go to his people wholly as those of a private citizen. Aboard this long and sorrowful train as it speeds today on the last lap of its 4000-mile journey from San Francisco were those whom Warren G. Harding gathered about him in that high office which he held. All of the cabinet, save two who are now

ALL MARION IN DEEPEST SORROW

Long Streamers of Crepe And Flags at Half Mast As Body Arrives

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 9.—Warren G. Harding came back home today to receive from the people of his own Marion an acclaim in death that was greater and more touching by far than any he ever experienced in life from the people who had called him by his first name for forty years.

He came back to Marion as he left it—not as a dignified president of the United States with all the trappings of official pomp and display—but simply as "W. G.", a leading citizen of a small community who had gone away from home, won high honors in foreign fields and now that the race was done, had come home to rest forever amid the surroundings he knew and loved so well.

Train Is Late

The fact that his funeral train was three hours late made little difference to the sorrowful thousands of his people who thronged the Union Station, who lined the roads for miles out of Marion and who turned Center Street into an avenue of sorrow such as the city he helped to build never witnessed before. Mourned by a nation and by the world across 4,000 dreary miles of travel, met with respect and reverential regard

BIG SHAKEUP WILL SOON RESULT IN CABINET

At Least Four Members to Quit Within Next Month, Politicians Predict

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Coolidge plans to summon the governors of all states to the White House conference early next month to discuss prohibition enforcement, it was learned today. The conference, originally planned by the late President Harding, will be carried out by the new executive along the same lines, it was said.

Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania called on President Coolidge today, urging that the Harding plan be followed. Other administration dry leaders have endorsed Pinchot's suggestion.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Speculation on possible changes in the cabinet of President Coolidge flooded the capital today, with rumors flying that at least four members will resign within the next month. President Coolidge has given no indication of his attitude toward the cabinet beyond his official statements asking all members to remain, some of his closest advisers have caused it to become known.

The cabinet situation, based on a consensus of opinion among party leaders, is as follows:

Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State—Probably will remain, at least until after Congress convenes, to complete arrangements which he formulated during the recess. If his friends formally launch a presidential boom behind him, his resignation would come at once.

Andrew M. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury—Resignation expected and probably will be accepted. Mr. Mellon is reported "disillusioned" by his experience in public office and greatly desires to retire to private life.

John Wingate Weeks, Secretary of War—Will remain. Friends of President Coolidge want him to direct the executive's probable campaign for re-election.

Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney Genral—Will resign almost immediately. His illness precludes continuation in office. His post probably will go to prominent New York or Massachusetts lawyer.

Harry B. New, Postmaster General—Probably will remain. Friends of Mr. Coolidge desire him in cabinet for his political sagacity. He is reported as having indicated his willingness to stay.

Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy—Resignation expected and will be accepted.

Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior—Future uncertain with some of Mr. Coolidge's advisers demanding a practical western business man for his post.

Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture—Future uncertain. A majority of Mr. Coolidge's advisers desire a practical "dirt farmer" in this secretaryship. Wallace's record in office so favorable party leaders may demand his retention.

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce—Resignation expected and will be accepted, probably within month or two. The presidential boom launched by Hoover's friends preclude his remaining in cabinet. The Hoover boom started months ago.

James G. Davis, Secretary of Labor—Will remain. His record looked upon with favor by President Coolidge, and the secretary deemed big asset by the president's advisers.

BURBANK

NEW THEATRE IS TO COST $25,000

Enterprise to Be Owned And Operated by Burbank Business People

In the new American Theatre, Burbank will have an institution built and ownd and operated by local people. The structure, which will cost approximately $25,000, is an addition to the Minor building and is now under way, Nelson & Williams having the general contract, while Mr. Blakeman has the contract for the brick work. The plans were drawn by Farley & Farley.

The seating capacity of the new playhouse will be in the neighborhood of 700. The room now leased as a shoe-repairing shop will be converted into a beautiful lobby, while the room on the east will be remodeled and probably leased as a confectionery store.

Free Express Delivery

Should a petition now circulating receive favorable consideration, Burbank will have free delivery of express, according to M. E. Gilbert, local agent for the Pacific Electric railway, over whose line the express is handled.

It is Mr. Gilbert who has been circulating the petition. The company feels, he says, that it is but a question of time when free delivery will be given; and he thinks the time is near.

If Mr. Gilbert's plans carry, he intends to put on a delivery truck. The tentative district wherein such deliveries would be made lies between Front and Eighth streets and between Providencia and Cypress avenues, he says, although he states that final decision rests with the express company.

Lease Cabin Sites

The cabin site tangle is being straightened out by Manager Bridges of the Sunset Canyon Country club, with the same executive tact and ability he displayed in putting the club's finances in shape.

To straighten out the matter of duplicate and in some instances triplicate leases Mr. Bridges has discovered, he has sent a letter to the members of the club, stating among other things:

"Your lot may have a duplicate lease on it and someone may begin building at once; hence it is very important to you as well as to the club, since there are no adequate records in the office, that every member of the club notify us by return mail what actual leases you hold, giving the number of lot or lots and the section or zone in which said lots are located."

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"The Man From Glengarry," Ralph Connor's immortal tale of the Canadian rivermen's feud, which as a book has been enjoyed by millions, shows as a picture at the Glendale Theatre today, with a strong all-star cast.

Nature has provided the scenery and settings for this massive Hodkinson production, which was filmed right in the Canadian woods, under the direction of Henry McRae, himself the son of a Glengarry lumberman.

Realism! It abounds in this rapid-fire romance of life in the raw, where log jams are dynamited before the audience's eyes, where in the yeasty foam men risk their lives thundering hoarse commands, where primitive forces are at work on primitive men.

THE GATEWAY

"Penrod and Sam," now showing on the screen of the Gateway Theatre, is another of those inimitable Booth Tarkington comedies that have delighted millions as magazine stories and books, and are delighting millions more as motion pictures.

Who that reads does not love Penrod, appealing as he does to the boy in all of us? And Sam, his little companion of many a prank, everyone has a warm heart for him too!

They are both at the Gateway Theatre tonight, in one of the funniest, truest-to-life, honest-to-goodness comedies that has been screened in many a day. "Penrod and Sam" is for old and young alike, a picture for the American family.

FOILS JAP PLOT TO RUN ESTATES

Aliens Seek Appointment as Guardians of Minors Under Old Law

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—Halting an alleged rush of Japanese to be appointed guardians of the estates of Japanese minors, Herman C. Lichtenberger, head of the probate division of the county clerk's office, has declared that all such matters will be required to wait their turn on the calendar, which will delay them until the new state law goes into effect.

Under the new law, no alien may act as a guardian of any estate. An alien may be appointed guardian of a person and look after his own children, but the practice of Japanese-born parents placing property in the names of their American-born heirs and then controlling the property as guardians of the estate, will be stopped.

Anticipating the effect of the new law, a number of Japanese guardianship proceedings have recently been filed, it was stated today, with the request that they be heard and passed on at once. Lichtenberger has already turned down four such requests and told attorneys in each case they would be forced to wait until their turn on the calendar and that their request would be heard some time in September, after the law becomes effective.

Ravages of Forest Fires Newspapers As Educators. Big Men from Little Towns Bidding the Last Farewell.

By Gil A. Cowan

FOREST fires are literally ravishing some of the most inaccessible mountain ranges of Southern California, according to reports. In Santa Barbara and Ventura counties the flames are burning over the Sisquoc river country uncontrolled.

In San Bernardino country great areas of valuable timberland and watersheds are endangered by blazes breaking out anew, and it may take weeks of fighting to finally subdue these flames. All of which points to the need of care on the part of campers.

The smallest spark sometimes starts the most serious blaze. A match, a piece of broken glass or an ember blown from a camp fire is all that is necessary. People should be careful, indeed, they must take every precaution if this land is not to be left barren.

For it is the timberland of the mountains that conserves the winter rains, which in turn feed the streams from which our water and power are derived. "Prevent Forest Fires" should be the sermon of everyone, for all who essay to visit the mountains in the dry seasons of the year.

Glendale likes to read. That is indicated by the report submitted to the library board by Librarian Alma J. Danford. More than 200,000 circulation of books during the past year was reported. Yet the figure ought to have been five times greater.

It is estimated this year that more than two million copies of The Glendale Evening News will be circulated. The material contained in one edition of this paper is equal to that of a book.

And so we can draw the deduction that the daily paper is ten times more effective in educating the public than the library. This is borne out by conversation with people throughout this broad land.

In Paso Robles I met a man of foreign birth, who could neither read nor write when he landed in New York. He who said the large headlines of the newspapers were his primer, the cartoons and comic pictures were an incentive to learn the language, and the concisely written articles of the newspaper were his pathway to an American-English education.

Friends aided him in learning to write, but he used the typewriter because it looked more like the printed letters he saw in the papers. And today he is earning $10,000 a year as a traveling salesman.

More people should read the papers, more should avail themselves of the libraries, for it is a fault most of us talk without knowing whereof we speak.

One of the brightest men in Glendale told me he read The Glendale Evening News for the local events—that he wasn't interested in other matters of general information.

Such a course is provincial, it is warping to the mind, for no one should fail to read the telegraphic news nor should they pass up the latest views on world topics, humor, hints, news letters and other informative features of the magazine pages.

And the writer of this column would ask any literary person to find more noble passages than those written by George R. Holmes for International News Service yesterday regarding the departed president's funeral.

You must read The Glendale Evening News to keep informed of worldwide and local events in the best possible manner. It is a complete newspaper in every sense of the word.

Tomorrow will be a day of national mourning. All Glendale activities are being arranged to comply fittingly with the local, state and national proclamations.

The Glendale Evening News is arranging to print an edition which will serve as a memorial to the late president, Warren G. Harding. It will be profusely illustrated with the most recent, as well as memorable, pictures of the man who gave his life in the service of his country.

Burial of the body in Marion, Ohio, is the final tribute from the small town from whence the president had come. Only recently, John M. Siddall, editor of the American Magazine, was buried in Oberlin, Ohio, another small town.

It is from these more virile communities that great men seem to migrate. They take to the metropolis the ambitions and desires and ideals which can be developed only, it seems, away from the sordid lanes of skyscrapers and tenements.

Out in the open, where the wind rustles through the trees, where neighbors know one another intimately, where children live natural, healthy lives—that's where greatness gets its breadth and depth of character to carry it far into life's stream.

It was unusual that the Rev. and Mrs. Harry G. Lucas of this city should be third in the long line of mourners to look upon the departed president as his body lay in state at the capitol yesterday afternoon.

It was a privilege that anyone in America would have been glad to have had the opportunity of taking—the one last glance at Warren G. Harding, who in another day will have returned to the earth from whence he sprang.

SMART BATHING SUITS DRAW CROWDS TO BEACHES

Modern Mermaids Cast Aside Scales And Put On Very Latest Suits

Our modern mermaids do not sit on half submerged rocks far from shore combing their hair and singing to attract sailors and tempt them to their doom. They sit or stroll on the beaches or swim daringly out into the briny deep at summer resorts. And they do not have to sing to entice sailors or other members of the "stronger" sex to their sides. They merely smile and mighty males drop at their feet or plunge along at their sides as they swim for the raft.

The suit at the left looks at first glance as if it were meant for beach strolling only. It is made of rubberized material, however. The gaily colored cape may be cast aside and the charming mermaid takes her dip shedding the water from her smart suit as if she had borrowed and attired herself in a duck's raiment.

The figure at the right is all ready for the real business of swimming. Her knitted suit of Kelly green features vertical and horizontal stripes of white fibre silk. It is named the "checker board suit and truly it looks as though a game of checkers might be played on it while milady rests on the beach after her dip.

The suit in the center is another practical as well as smart suit for the real swimmer. It also is a knitted affair of greenest hue. It features a white belt which in turn parades a buckle of oxidized metal worn jauntily at the side. Notice that the stockings worn with this suit are also knitted. A perky bow worn in front completes the fascination of this costume.

Says Minneapolis Is Driest American City

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 9.—Minneapolis is the "driest" city of its size in the United States, according to S. B. Quale, Federal Prohibition Director for the State of Minnesota. He asserts that this claim will be admitted by even the most rabid foes of Volsteadism here.

While the Federal prohibition agent does not claim that it is not possible to obtain a drink here, it is, he said, difficult. And, he claims, there are not many drinks to be had.

Many factors have combined to give Minneapolis the right to this claim, Quale declared. Chief among the weapons in hands of the prohibition unit, he said, were the issuing of "stiff" sentences by the courts to violators arrested and the frequent use of the abatement law. The latter has proven especially effective, the prohibition chieftain of Minnesota asserted.

Also of no small importance in the successful fight waged against illicit traffic in liquor here, it was pointed out, was the co-operation given Federal authorities by city, county and State authorities.

Conditions are reported as improving throughout the State by Director Quale, who recently made a survey of conditions generally.

Planes May Operate On Compressed Air

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Propellerless airplanes are the latest probable invention of scientists.

Laboratory research has shown that air, compressed and mixed with fuel in a combustion chamber, could be projected through a nozzle at the rear of the airplane, and the reaction to its discharge would necessarily drive the machine through the air.

The only drawback to this means of propulsion, it is thought, would be the heaviness of the mechanism and the high fuel consumption.

Search for Film Star As Mother Lies Sick

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—While Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, mother of Mary Miles Minter, film actress, lay seriously ill in a local hospital today, search was started by friends for the young actress who is believed to be somewhere near Los Angeles or in southern California. Mrs. Shelby was operated on two days ago. Attending physicians considered the operation only a minor one, but for some unexplained reason, she has taken on a serious condition.

Jazz to Be Classic Future Music, Claim

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 9.—"Lift up your heads and sing, sing even, 'Yes, We Have No Bananas'," said E. W. Newton, an eminent Boston composer, to 2000 school teachers gathered for the state summer school session at Yale university and while the teachers looked at each other Mr. Newton went on to explain maybe that might become a classic some day, and surely children should know the classics of music.

"People come into my office and ask me if I have heard 'Yes, we have no bananas.' Of course, I answer 'Yes,' and then they begin to denounce every popular song that ever was written. Then they turn right around and praise every folk song that was ever written. They do not realize that every folk song, when it first appeared, was a popular song.

"It is the people and not the critics who determine the value of a song."

Mr. Newton then had his pianist play "Dixie" in the manner of Wagner, Beethoven, Bizet, et al., and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" in the Berlin manner, while teachers absorbed the idea and are ready to set Connecticut children on the new song road.

Diplomatic Corps Is Received by Coolidge

In formal dress they paid the respects of their governments to the new president, who received them in the magnificent crystal ball room of the Willard hotel, the temporary White House. The diplomats were led by Don Juan Y. Gayangos, the Spanish ambassador, acting as dean of the corps in the absence of Ambassador Jusserand of France.

Woman Sets Pace for Men Unloading Cinders at Freight Station

HORNELL, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Hornell contractors have solved a labor problem, provided they can find a few more women like Mrs. Mina Build, who has been unloading cinders from freight cars here, working beside two stalwart men and forcing them to extend themselves to keep up with her.

"It's nothing," she said modestly. "I am good and strong, and hard work won't hurt me any. Winter before last I cut seventy-five cords of wood, and did about the same last winter. I saw a chance for a little easy money, so I took this job."

The sun has been burning hot, yet Mrs. Guild has worked in the cars bareheaded and apparently not mindful of the heat. She is a woman about thirty years of age, and the possessor of a figure that would make Venus envious. She eats whatever she wants and has no worries about getting fat, she smilingly admitted.

Her husband has worked beside her, and every night showed unmistakable signs of fatigue. She, on the contrary, seemed fresh as ever.

Cartridges Are Hen's Favorite Rations

BIRCHWOOD, Wis., Aug. 9.—World disarmament might be helped considerably could a flock of hens like one owned by Olaf Cook, farmer of this community, be turned loose.

When the hen was killed for market recently its gizzard was found to contain 61 copper cartridge shells, of .22, .25 and .32 caliber. One pin also was found in the strange collection.

Find Ancient Relics After Earthquake

ROME, Aug. 9.—Relics in the form of two large brass vases, filled with pieces of gold and believed by experts to belong to a period 300 or 400 years B. C., have been discovered at Ognina, near Mount Etna. They were found in a fissure in an old wall by a deaf-and-dumb peasant following a slight earthquake.

SPORTS

SPORTS CHATTER
By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The deer season is opening in various parts of the country. Now watch out for the human bag.

Spider Kelly, former well-known lightweight boxer, and one of the greatest seconds in the history of the ring game, is nursing his heavyweight protege with a view of taking him east in the fall. Spider's charge has been bowling over the second and third raters on the coast practically every time he has had a match and after he has had a bit more experience he will be sent after bigger game. Kelly says that Tex Rickard already has offered to get some matches for the newcomer.

The first Hawaiian-bred horses ever shipped to this country purely for racing purposes have arrived in San Francisco and are being groomed for the Tanforan track season in the fall. These colts come from some of the best of the English strains. They were raised on the famous Parker ranch which has produced many fine polo ponies in the past and with which the army team recently met mainland teams.

Zenzo Shimizua and M. Fukuia of the Japanese Davis cup team have been playing impressive tennis and must be reckoned with in all competition in which they engage. The summary manner in which they disposed of the best players that the Dominion of Canada had to offer was an eye-opener to the critics.

Having the reputation of being the comedian of Pacific Coast league attached to him evidently is not conducive to excellence in batting as far as Carl Sawyer of the Vernon club is concerned. Carl is probably too eager to sustain his reputation as a laugh provoker to settle his mind on baseball. He is batting away down in the 200's. However, it's a good deal to ask of one man to be a funny actor and a ball player at the same time.

The constant talk on the part of the various boxing critics that Firpo would be something of a mark for Dempsey owing to his comparative inexperience in the ring no doubt has somewhat worried the South American for he is not at all keen for his early battle against the champion and comes out flatfootedly and says that he would prefer the fight be postponed a year.

If that is the way Firpo feels, the logical thing for his manager to do would be to accede to his wish. The fact that Firpo himself is dubious about the result at the present time is sufficient evidence that he has not the requisite confidence in himself to put up a winning fight and he would be half licked before he entered the ring.

Firpo can make all the money he needs, and then some, without getting tangled up with Dempsey. There are a woods full of men against whom he could be matched and who easily could be disposed of without risking the prestige Firpo already has gained.

With the reported matching of Charlie White of Chicago and Benny Leonard for a twelve-round battle at Jersey City on August 30, Charles gets his umpteenth crack at the lightweight crown. Most folks think the result will be the same as it has been in the past—failure.

Babe Ruth smashed out his 23rd 1923 home run on July 24. In 1921 when he made his season's record, his 23rd, homer went over the fence on Tuesday, June 14. On July 24 of that year he had accumulated 36 four bag clouts—thirteen more than he now has.

Emanuel Lasker wants a chance to retrieve his lost championship class laurels taken from him by J. R. Capablanca, the Cuban expert and world's title holder. All right, Manny, we're for you, but don't expect us to get excited.

There is no one in the Pacific coast league within hailing distance of Kopp of Sacramento in the matter of stolen bases. This Senator has 45 pilfered bags to his credit. Lane of Seattle, who comes next, has only 26 to his credit. Scanning the various stolen base records for 1923 in the various leagues leads one to infer that the art has become a lost one. A mere handful of players have anything like a respectable showing in this direction. Time was, a decade ago, when there were lots of players well up in the double figures.

The question is, are the players getting lazy or are the catchers more alert? Of course, speed on the part of the base runner is an important factor, but it does seem strange that when two men play in practically the same number of games, have about the same times at bat and approximately an equality as to the number of base hits that one man should have nearly 50 stolen bases, while the other fellow has a meager half dozen.

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The rematching of Benny Leonard and Charlie White is suggesive of the fact that there is no one in the lightweight division at the present time who stands a chance against the champion. No one is likely to give White a chance against Leonard and the meeting of the two again indicates a stagnation among the little fellows as far as quality is concerned.

Of course people will pay to go and see the battle. They seem to be willing tto pay to see almost anything that the promoters foist on them in the way of alleged matches, but it will be a merely perfunctory event. The interest will be exceedingly mild.

It is rather a sad commentary on the present day fighters when one compares the mediocre performers with the many stars of the past. In the days of Gans, Nelson and Wolgast, the woods were fairly alive with challengers who really were good men and who always were able to inject an element of uncertainty into a match.

Is there any particular reason for this present day dearth? The answer seems to lie in the fact that in the old days there was not so much legislation in connection with the sport. Practically every state in the Union allowed fights of all kinds to be pulled off, from a few rounds to 45 rounds and all the way through to unlimited matches.

California in those days was a breeding place for good pugilists as evidenced by the many names on the roster including those of Corbett, Choynski, Jeffries, Ritchie, Britt, Spider Kelly, Eddie Hanlon, and many others. Unlimited matches were countenanced and every boy who took up the sport professionally was a prospective champion.

Legislation has done away with all this. In California only four-round bouts are permitted, and this only among the so-called "amateurs" although the law is openly being winked at and the "medals" permitted are somewhat strained in character.

All the other states have limited round bouts prescribed, few of them permitting 20 rounds and the majority being confined from six to fifteen rounds.

Most of the old timers who have followed the champions through a matter of several decades will tell you with a sigh that it is legislation that is doing the trick and it seems to be a plausible conclusion at which to arrive. The short round affairs are not conducive to the development of the thinking fighter. It is a slam bang affair of only a few minutes and there is little chance for the generalship that entered into the old-time engagements.

TAGGING ALL BASES

Encouraged by the twenty-first home run of Williams, with one on and the magnificent pitching of Davis, the Browns outstepped the Yankees, 4 to 3. Davis fanned Ruth and Smith in the ninth with the tying run on second base.

Kaufman was very parsimonious in the matter of base hits, and the Cubs beat the Phillies, 4 to 2.

The Dodgers and Pirates divided the spoils, Vance pitching winning ball in the first game, 9 to 7, and Morrison in the second, 5 to 3.

Ainsmith's homer of the eighth put the quietus on the Giants and gave the Cards a 4 to 3 decision.

After Dauss had shut the Red Socks out in the first game, 4 to 0, Burns won the second, 3 to 2, socking one over the left field fence in the seventh.

Charles Grimm of the Pirates, first sacker extraordinary and high base thumper of the National League, is the first really great first baseman ever to wear a Pittsburg uniform.

The initial sack has always been a jinx to the Steel City aggregation. Trying to fill the gaping hole at first has sent many a Pirate manager to the very gates of the madhouse—until along came Charles.

Now this Grimm person has the National League ball tossers on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Every time they look at the batting averages that name Grimm heads the list with more hits than George Cohan has put over in 15 years.

This wrecker of pitching records bats and throws left-handed, and fields like Hal Chase (without any of Hal's other bad habits).

Connie Mack gave Grimm a trial in 1916 in the outfield. Then the Cardinals tried him at first in the spring of 1917. Then for three years Grimm plugged away determinedly with Little Rock in the Southern League, until the Pirates grabbed him and he settled permanently on the initial sack with the Buccaneers.

Grimm is 24 years old, stands six feet tall, and was born in St. Louis but has overcome the handicap.

BOWLERS BATTLE FOR CITY TITLE

Drisle Proves Dark Horse of Tournament, Winning by Handsome Margin

To decide the singles championship of Glendale, a tournament was held last night at the Jensen Recreation center, at which time the best bowlers of the city fought for supremacy in a five-game series.

Before play began it was conceded that the affair would be a toss-up between Roder, Covell, Anstey, Brehme and Veise, but a dark horse stepped in and copped the honor, Neil Drisle pushing the maples over for the count of 960, an average of 192 for the series.

Covell and Roder battled hard for second place, the honor going to Covell by a margin of four pins. Royls slipped in for fourth place.

Final Scores

Those participating in the event, and their scores, follow:

N. Dristle	177	207	194	177	205—960
Covell	174	194	186	183	168—905
Roder	174	152	215	202	158—901

Holmes	124	179	163	148	147—761

Strikes and Spares

Neise and Holmes were even up on the splits—10 each.

Roder was on the way up the ladder, but stubbed his toe in the last game—leaving him in third place.

Royls skidded in the tenth of of the last game—loosing to Roder by two pins.

The Sawtelle quartet—Neise, Anstey, Brehme and Fortunato, also ran.

The new wood dropped hard—as indicated by the many low scores.

Evanston Seeks To Cut Out 'Main Street'

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—"In the eyes of the public, Main street is no longer the name of a respected and respectful busy street, but rather the public now considers the name as indicative of a yokel condition—a label of hickdom—whereas no such thing is true in Evanston, Illinois."

A petition setting forth the above was widely circulated at Evanston, a Chicago suburb, recently. The signers are seeking to obliterate the name "Main street" from the directory.

There are more than 100,000 colored residents of the District of Columbia.

Internal Revenue Figures Show This District Is Most Prosperous

The Los Angeles Internal Revenue office and branch offices in the district will be closed all day Friday, August 10, out of respect for the nation's late President, Warren G. Harding, announces Collector Rex Goodcell, instructions to this effect having been received from Washington.

The main office, 306 Federal building, Los Angeles, together with branch offices, will be open Saturday, August 11, from 8:30 o'clock in the morning until 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the announcement states.

Reports to Washington from Rex Goodcell, collector of Internal Revenue for the Los Angeles district, show that Southern California is still the "white spot" of the nation, particularly marked increases being noted in the retail sales of jewelry for the first seven months of 1923, as compared with the same period of a year ago; and marked increases being noted in attendance at motion picture theaters, during that period.

Sales Increase

The survey shows that from January 1 to August 1, 1923, the jewelry tax receipts were $493,086.79, against $356,173.15 for the same months of 1922, a gain of 39 per cent.

The tax collected represents retail sales for the seven months of 1923 of $9,861,600. For 1922 the sales for this period were $7,123,460, showing a gain in sales in 1923 of $2,738,140, or 39 per cent.

Evidently Southern California loyally supported its June brides. The tax collected for June, 1923, indicated an increased crop of brides, for the tax receipts represented sales of $1,205,240, compared with $821,580, for June, 1922, an increase of 47 per cent in jewelry sales.

"A 47 per cent increase in the tax on jewelry spells prosperity, for the people of California could not afford to spend $1,205,240 for jewelry in one month if they were not riding easy", said Collector Goodcell.

Seek Amusements

Outstanding features of Collector Goodcell's survey of collections for admission taxes to motion picture theaters and other places of amusement were:

That the 1,424,000 people credited to Southern California by the 1920 census paid 18,330,000 admissions to motion picture theaters and other places of amusement during the month, of which 3,000,000 were 10-cent or less admissions and therefor tax free.

That $261,865.41 was collected in admission taxes compared with $196,804.09 for the corresponding period of last year, a record-breaking gain of 30 per cent.

That the tax collected shows approximately $3,225,000, was spent for amusements in Southern California during the month.

Emphasizing the unprecedented growth in motion picture and other amusement attendance in Southern California, Collector Goodcell's report shows that for the entire year of 1918 the amusement tax amounted to only $582,000, as compared with $261,865 for July, 1923, alone and $1,600,000 for the first six months of 1923. In 1918 the tax on 10-cent admissions was in force, but this tax was eliminated by the 1921 revenue act, and was not collected in 1923. With $1,600,000 collected for the first six months of 1923 the receipts for the full year should show a gain of 550 per cent over 1918, Collector Goodcell said.

Taking the amusement attendance for June as a basis, the paid admissions for the full year 1923 should reach 220,000,000, or twice the population of the United States.

BUSINESS WOMAN WINNING FRIENDS

Head of Women's Department at Fashion Center Is Keen Executive

The words patrons and friends are synonymous when applied to the Glendale women who have become acquainted with Miss Emma P. Heitz, owner and manager of the house dress, apron, lingerie and hosiery department at the Fashion Center at 202 South Brand boulevard.

Since opening her shop in Glendale Miss Heitz has made countless friends and the popularity and satisfaction with the attractive daytime dresses and aprons and lingerie and hosiery she offers the Glendale misses and matrons have traveled far. It was most gratifying to Miss Heitz when the Tuesday Afternoon club delegates to the state convention at Eureka returned home, for her to learn that her attractive house dresses were mentioned in the greeting the women received.

As a 100 per cent Glendalian Miss Heitz is a member of the Business Women's club and the Tuesday Afternoon club, and a loyal supporter of the Chamber of Commerce and of all projects for the development of Glendale.

Today in the advertising columns of The Glendale Evening News she is announcing the arrival of an attractive consignment of daytime aprons and dresses, which will be valuable additions to her already tempting line of house dresses, aprons, lingerie and hosiery.

Mr. And Mrs. General Public Due For Fit--Or Treat--When Solons Start Talking

A windstorm that may assume cyclonic proportions threatens Mr. General Puplic and all the little g. p.'s these days. With the return from Europe of the numerous globe-trotting legislators and public officials, to say nothing of unofficial observers who went over to get impressions on "conditions," the European situation probably will become just a little clearer than a good, healthy mud puddle. One says the soviets ought to be recognized for the good of the continent, and another says that unless the tariff on near-beer to Germany is raised the country may be flooded with marks. In other words, each corraled what he went after—impressions—but they all differ.

WELFARE BUREAU ACTIVITIES TOLD

Philanthropic Work Shown In Reports Submitted By Officials

Glendale's philanthropic activities were outlined last night at the meeting of the Glendale Welfare Bureau and Council at the city hall.

Mrs. E. D. Yard, president, was in charge, and there were in attendance C. E. Kimlin, vice-president; Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, treasurer; Mrs. F. S. Card, chairman of local relief of the Tuesday Afternoon club, and Mrs. L. T. Rowley, secretary, and chairman, philanthropy of the Glendale Parent-Teachers' association.

Work accomplished and aid given during the past two months were reported on and plans discussed for the activities for the coming year.

Two Months' Work

Mrs. Sinclair presented her report for the months of June and July, including:

Home visits 32; interviews at office 16; families assisted 22; new cases reported 12; employment secured (Welfare Council) 11; city orders for groceries 3; articles of clothing 372; and the following by the council, hats 12, comforts 3, shoes 42 pairs, pillowcases 6, towels 8, sheets 2, cotton blankets 1 pair, 21 quarts of fruit.

A total disbursement of $50.50 was reported.

The gathering went on record as heartily endorsing the community chest plans.

Dr. Anderson En Route East to See Parents

Dr. "Jack" Anderson of 102 West California avenue is now en route east to viit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson of Troy, N. Y., in another effort to induce them to move to California. He will stop over in Salt Lake City, where he formerly practiced, in order to perform some especially requested operations. He expects to pursue some post graduate studies in both Chicago and New York City. He is particularly interested in boy problems, and has talked to about 5000 boys in Southern California during the past year. While he is away, he hopes to be able to confer with leading authoritiees in this field of social service.

FINGER INJURED

Millard H. Kohlhezeys of 105 West Doran street had the first and third finger of his left hand cut last night while working at the Los Angeles Basket Factory. He was brought to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital about 4 a. m. and it was found that amputation would not be necessary.

MINOR OPERATION

A minor operation was performed on Miss Ida Linkum of 134 South Verdugo road this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Fingerprints Cause Of Man's Conviction

Fingerprints yesterday served to convict Bennett Sutter of burglary in the first degree before Judge Charles Monroe in Department 14 of the Superior Court of Los Angeles county.

The local police department is being congratulated upon the cooperation which made this conviction possible. Fingerprints were taken by D. R. Armer of the local identification bureau, who had extensive experience in this work while in the army.

Loot stolen from Glendale by Mr. Sutter consisted of a check writer taken from the office of W. J. Curran at 221-A West Broadway and a typewriter and adding machine from the office of the Oakmont Country club at 206 South Brand boulevard. He was arrested the following day in Riverside as he was attempting to dispose of this office equipment.

An attempt to prove an alibi was refuted by the fingerprint evidence introduced in the trial. An effort to belittle this was rejected.

Research Hospital Staff Enjoys Melon

A watermellon party is being enjoyed this afternoon by the staff of the Gendale Research Hospital. The "guest" of honor is a fifty-seven pound watermellon which arrived yesterday from Weatherford, Texas. It was shipped by Mrs. B. M. Hart, formerly night supervisor, who recently went there to live. The melion was placed on ice immediately. It was sampled this morning by Dr. T. C. Young of 620 East Broadway, who said that it was quite delicious.

RESIDENCE ENTERED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Phillips at 361 West Acacia avenue was entered yesterday afternoon, but nothing was taken. Entrance was gained by breaking a glass in a rear door.

HUNT DRIVER IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Police Dragnet Is Spread for Man Who Left Victim He Knocked Down

Police departments of Southern California are endeavoring to apprehend the person driving a Ford coupe toward Los Angeles on San Fernando road about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, who failed to stop after his machine had knocked down F. Nunez of 639 West Elk street and injured him.

Mr. Nunez was walking from the west to the east side of San Fernando road at the end of Elk street. He was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital in the ambulance of L. G. Scovern, where it was reported this morning that he had a fractured rib and bruises about the head which might prove serious.

The license number of the coupe shows that the certificate was issued to W. E. Askew of 1100 South Broadway, Los Angeles. Mr. Askew, however, is in the automobile livery business and had rented the car to the driver who was operating it when the accident occurred.

The accident was witnessed by Ester Acosta of 639 West Elk street, and by William Gail and L. J. DeLaCuesta of Los Angeles.

Goat Dairy Making Daily Deliveries Here

The San-A-Tog goat dairy, of 14,092 Ventura boulevard is now making daily deliveries of pure goat milk in Glendale, announces E. T. Hagan, manager, stating that the ranch at that address has been four years developing into the present large and sanitary goat dairy.

"We have just completed construction of a $9000 barn, with other modern equipment to correspond," says Mr. Hagan. "Our goats are all pure bred and are regularly inspected, under the state laws, the same as cows.

"Everyone knows the nutricious and health-building qualities of goat milk. The difficulty has always been to get it with certainty and regularity. This difficulty the San-A-Tog dairy has now overcome." Orders may be placed for this milk by phoning Holly 5443 or Van Nuys 199 J-3.

Glendale Musician to Play at Bowl Concert

Glendalians are to be specially welcomed at the Hollywood Bowl concert Saturday night, August 18, which has been designated as "Glendale Night."

One of the features of the program will be a piano number, "Concerto" (MacDowell), by Miss Gertrude Cleophas of 337 North Central avenue.

A special section of seats will be reserved for Glendalians attending.

Final plans are being made for the children's concert on this Saturday afternoon, when many Glendale youngsters will be included in the audience.

Britain Is Building Monster Aeroplane

LONDON, Aug. 9.—There is being constructed in a secret hangar on an aerodrome near Norwich, Britain's latest "hush-hush" air fighter, with which, it is reported, she intends to re-arm her home defense air squadrons.

All details are withheld, it is said, under dire penalties. All that is known is that she is being constructed by Boulton & Paul, makers of British government aircraft, and that she will be the most speedy and invulnerable airplane yet designed.

Boulton & Paul have just completed another flying wonder for the British government—an all-steel mammoth plane of 1000 horsepower.

She is supposed to be the first and only airplane to have a separate engine room, watched over by a mechanic. It is a steel compartment in the fuselage; two motors totaling 1000 horsepower constituting the power.

She is intended for mail service in India.

Poor Advertising Is Hampering U. S. Trade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Incongruous advertising by American exporters to Latin-American countries is poor economy and affords those countries amusement rather than educates them to buy the products advertised, the Department of Commerce reported recently.

An advertisement portraying a Chinese wearing a product in a publication to be placed before the American public would be as ludicrous as some of the advertising now being used in Latin-America by American firms, the Department states.

To the successful promotion of American products in Latin-America by advertising careful attention must be given to "local color," and products must be distinctly Latin in effect and custom.

Exhibit Old Bell In Jefferson Memorial

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—Handed down through generations of an old Indian family, a historic bell which figured in many important events is in the possession of Louis J. Manar, known as "Indian Lou," a medicine salesman.

The bell, which is more than 200 years old, still retains its pure tone. The most important event in its history was when it was used in warning of the "attack of 1780," when the French and Indians met in St. Louis. St. Pierre used the bell during his regime in St. Louis, as well as many other persons who played important parts in the early history of the city.

The bell will be placed on exhibit in the Jefferson Memorial soon.

FIGHT TO EXIST ON CHEAP WAGES

Poorly Paid Girls Have Real Battle to Make Ends Meet on Salary

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 9.—The economic struggles of the "poor but honest working girl" are real as life in their desperation, according to the records of social workers here. The fight to exist decently on a wage of $15 to $20 weekly—often with a wage of $10 only—is no mean job, as the current rents charged will show.

Mrs. J. G. McKim, matron of the Des Moines Business Women's Home, declares average earnings of her roomers are $70 a month. A half share in a room with three meals a day may be had at the home for $6 weekly, and there is a long waiting list seeking admission. If a girl earns nearly $100 a month she is asked to live with a private family at higher rent, so that another working girl earning less may move in. The girls can do their own washing and ironing at a small extra charge.

The Y. W. C. A. is crowded with girls earning an average salary of $80 monthly, Mrs. L. H. Ingrahm, employment secretary, stated.

"Unless a girl is living at home we do not send her to apply for positions in laundries, restaurants and other places paying $10 and $12 weekly," Mrs. Ingrahm declared. "It is impossible for any woman to live decently on that pay unless she has other help."

CRINOLINE GOWN CAUSES TURMOIL

Return of Former Fashion Stirs London Women Over New Style

LONDON, Aug. 9. — Feminine London is in an uproar over the newest revolution of the dress designers—the return of the bustle and the crinoline.

The new fall models are revealed as having skirts which billow out from the waist in crinoline buoyancy and extend to the points of the wearer's toes, with close-fitting waists which, in contrast to the skirts, create the illusion of a wasp waist. Consternation has resulted among Dame Fashion's devotees.

Paris is blamed for starting the "new" vogue, and modern women are complaining that while it may suit the demure beauty of the debutante, they cannot be hampered by these bygone modes in the rush of everyday life.

And so it goes on. Dressmakers, as well as the wearers-to-be, are divided in their opinions as to the advisability of the threatened revolution. Some dressmakers are compromising by displaying quaint picture dresses which combine the modern with the old-fashioned, while others are refusing to have anything at all to do with the crinoline.

It seems that in all probability some modified dress will replace the exaggerated crinoline.

Balloon hangars can be kept cool by painting the outside with a highly reflecting coating like white paint and the inside with aluminum paint, it is said.

SAYS COSMETICS WASTE OF MONEY

Pure Water Beneficial for Cleaning Face, Claims Ohio Scientist

COLUMBUS, Ohio. Aug. 9.—That cosmetics "are a waste of money" and that just as beneficial results are obtained by massaging the face with pure water as by using cold creams, facial creams, clays and other "beautifiers" are claims voiced by Prof. Raymond J. Seymour, assistant professor of physiology at Ohio State University.

It is the rubbing and massaging, necessary in the use of the "beautifiers," for which American women annually spend millions of dollars, that stimulate the skin and circulation and result in real benefit, according to Professor Seymour.

"The skin absorbs outside agents only to a negligible extent," he said. "This is demonstrated by the fact that we handle all sorts of poisons, yet suffer no ill results. A small portion of the lead present in paints which the painter uses would be enough to kill him if it found its way into his blood, yet lots of it comes in contact with his skin.

OH, LITTLE TOWN OF MARION!

THE little town of Marion is not listed with the great,
There are little towns just like it in many another state,
And its people are just human, much the same as elsewhere found,
Working out their mortal problems in the daily journey's round;
But the eyes of all the people, here at home, and far away,
Moist with unshed tears are looking to'ard the little town today.

Oh, little town of Marion, how oft you saw him pass,
Along those quiet streets of yours, which now no more, alas,
Re-echo to the footsteps of one who called by Fate
Went forth from out your silences to guide the Ship of State—
Went out from wholesome strivings in the company of friends
To battle on the stormy heights where striving never ends.

He went not for the glory of the wide world's loud acclaim,
He went for love of service and not for greed of fame.
But with him went the shining ones with sword and coat of mail,
Who wait upon the Galahads that seek the Holy Grail!
He rode as rode the Knights of old, straight onward to the goal;
He found the Grail, but gave for it the casket of his soul.

Oh, little town of Marion, no more his footsteps roam,
And you, the dear ones of his heart, we send your hero home.
For he hath triumphed in his quest; no longer needs he coat of mail—
For him the Islands of the Blest have oped their gates and bid him hail.

Oh, little town of Marion, we send to you today,
Not him you gave the nation, but a bit of mortal clay
From which the fettered spirit, riving all its mortal bars,
Rides out on the wings of morning to its place among the stars.

LOVING ACTS AS CHIEF OF POLICE

J. D. Fraser Deputes Aide to Run Department for Two Weeks

Captain W. A. Loving of 1021 Matilja road is now chief of the Glendale police department.

Colonel J. D. Fraser of 643 North Maryland avenue, supervisor of this municipal department, turned over his badge of office last night, and this morning commenced a two weeks' vacation.

Captain Loving volunteered during the Spanish-American war and served continuously in the United States army until he was discharged with honor for disability incurred in service during the World war. He has been connected with the local police department for about two years. A large portion of this time he gave his services as a drill master at target practice for a dollar a year. His services were found very valuable in the direction of traffic, especially at the intersection of Brand boulevard and Broadway. Recently he was appointed a captain, and since then has been wearing a new tan uniform. He is well known in Glendale.

Marion in Mourning As Body Arrives

from the millions that have witnessed the passage of his funeral cortege for a week past it remained for Marion to show the real and poignant grief of long friendship.

And it was more impressive in its simple dignity, more touching in its homely frankness and sincerity than any of the great demonstrations that have kept apace with his funeral train across the continent. Only a year ago he was here before.

Line of Sorrow

Then it was a Marion homecoming—a period of rejoicing and festivity and the town was gaily decorated in his honor. There were eager and well-remembered faces to smile a welcome and shout a welcome greeting. Today he came back to find a town sorrow-ridden and gloomy with the realization of death.

The mile from the station to his father's house was one long avenue of tearful faces and where tears were not, there were sorrowful faces that told of tears not long since dried. Those of every age, wearing long streamers of crepe and flags that barely showed their colors from beneath their drapings of black.

From every window there gleamed his picture, smiling in the self-same way he used to smile from the "front porch," but draped in the sorrowful black that denotes the dead.

There will be no admission charge, and the public is invited to attend.

ADVENTISTS PLAN HARDING TRIBUTE

Memorial Services Will Be Held Friday in Church By Elder Parmele

This will be the second service held by the Seventh-day Adventists for the dead president, the first having taken place at tht church last Saturday morning. The service tomorrow night has been arranged so that those unable to attend the services earlier in the day may pay tribute to the dead president. All members and friends of the church are invited to participate.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin, acting mayor of Glendale, will preside over the service and the speakers will be Elder W. M. Adams, president of the Southern California Seventh-day Adventist conference; Elder G. W. Reaser, business manager of the Southern California conference; Elder R. W. Parmele, J. O. Corliss and others.

There will also be special music by the church choir.

Home State Receives Back Its Honored Son

homeward bound in response to messages which followed his death, are aboard the widow's train.

Tomorrow will witness the coming of President Coolidge, called by the whim of an inscrutable fate to take up the duties so suddenly laid down by him who is buried today. The new president and the cabinet will go to the president's grave tomorrow and symbolize the nation's bereavement so far removed from the seat of national government.

The route taken by the funeral train today was one that was very familiar to the late president in life and to his grief-stricken widow, who rode with his body as she has ridden 4,000 miles across desert, plain and mountain to bring it home. Scores of times they made the journey over this route during the nine years that the dead president served his nation and state at Washington.

The funeral train crossed into Ohio early this morning after an all-night run from the national capital that led through Pennsylvania. The overnight trip was reminiscent of the four long nights returning from the Pacific coast when hundreds and thousands of people gathered at the stations or tracks, regardless of the hour, simply to stand and glimpse at the flower-laden casket in the rear car.

First to Honor Dead

East Palestine was the first community to receive back its dead. From there on the train was scheduled to pass Leetonia, Salem, Alliance, Canton, Massillon, Orville, Wooster, Mansfield, Galion, arriving at Marion at 10:30 a. m.

Since leaving San Francisco the president's remains have always been carried in the car "Superb," which invariably has been attached to the last car on the rear of the train. Today the "Superb" was carried as next to the last car on the long train with the private car "Enquirer" belonging to E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, swinging on the end. McLean has been a personal friend of the late president for years.

Another car was added at Washington, too, in order to carry the enormous arrays of floral decorations collected en route and in Washington. The flowers completely filled one huge baggage car which has been kept iced in order that their freshness may be retained until the funeral services are held late Friday.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

Mrs. William C. Page of 1729 East DeValle road has returned to her home today following a recent operation at the Glendale Research Hospital.

SAYS SOUTHLAND IS BRIGHT SPOT

Glendalian, After Visit East, Says This Section Is Luring Easterners

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Reichenbach of 516 Gardena avenue have returned home, following a ten weeks' trip east, convinced that the one bright spot in the universe for them is Southern California. "While we didn't go away dissatisfied," remarked Mr. Reichenbach, "we did come back more satisfied than ever. We found that all eyes are pivoted on this section of the country, and that conditions here far surpass those in the East in every way."

Chicago, which had not been visited for twenty-nine years, was the destination of the trip. In this interval the population has increased from 1,500,000 to about 3,000,000, and many changes have taken place. Shifts of foreign colonies were noticed particularly.

Although Mr. Reichenbach feels that he would never be satisfied to return to Chicago to reside permanently, he acknowledges that Chicago is a thriving commercial city. He feels, however, that rents there are out of all proportion to incomes.

Homes Cost High

"To get any decent and reasonable living conditions," he commented, "you have to go out a long ways from the Loop. In the suburbs there is no land that you can buy for less than $100 a foot. That means $5000 for the same sized lot that you would buy here for $1000 or $2000. In addition, here you get sunshine, fresh air and maybe fruit and vegetables. Then you can save from $200 to $400 a winter heating expenses. You can't buy a properly built five or six-room house for less than $10,000. Everybody knows what they cost here."

While visiting relatives in the Badger state, Mr. and Mrs. Reichenbach had an opportunity to tour many parts of Wisconsin by automobile. They admired the scenery of the lakes and dells exceedingly.

"The farmer in the East is in a bad way on account of prices," explained Mr. Reichenbach. "They have been having bumper crops all the way through, but oats were selling for 30 cents a bushel and hogs only bring 4 and 4½ cents a pound."

An illustration of how the farmers and dairymen are being affected was cited in the case of a relative who owns two farms aggregating 260 acres, with at least $20,000 tied up in buildings and equipment. In addition, he has a herd of twenty-seven Guernsey cows worth more than $3000. Each season it is necessary for him to seed his ground, harvest his crops, feed it to his stock, arise early in the morning to milk, and then sell his milk. For all this labor and investment he derives a gross income of only $150 a month.

Farms Abandoned

"I never saw so many abandoned farms in my life as I did in northern Wisconsin!" exclaimed Mr. Reichenbach. "The farms all seem to look well kept up, but the farmers have found that it does not pay to operate them under present prices. A man who can't make any more money than that gets discouraged and just walks away. That is why the government is expecting to legislate for the farmers."

A large influx of home seekers from the Middle West this fall is predicted by Mr. Reichenbach. He said that he not only talked with a number of families that wanted to come to California, but, also, to a number who are actually coming.

The return trip was made via the Canadian Pacific, and many stopovers were made en route, to enjoy the scenery of the Canadian Rockies. After coming by boat from Vancouver to Seattle, the journey down the coast was made by rail via the Shasta route.

New Invention Combines Phonograph And Motion Pictures In One Machine

By GIL A. COWAN

A DEMONSTRATION of the "moviola" in the window of the Glendale Phonograph Company's Artistic Brunswick Shoppe last night by J. B. Budworth and associates gave Glendale people an inkling as to what the future will be in the homes of the country. The machine, which is manufactured in Altadena, is nothing more or less than a miniature motion picture equipment which shows standard reel productions.

Already the phonograph case has been adapted for the radio, ice chest and heating stove, so it is not strange to see this new "music box" with a picture machine and phonograph combined. It will take to the country residence all of the modernity of city life.

Phonographs Everywhere

And as the crowds gazed on the face of the late "Smiling Bill" Parsons, it seemed as though there is no nook or cranny in the world where the radio and motion pictures will not reach, for already the phonograph has been introduced into the South Sea islands.

Mr. Budworth has plans of invading the South American motion picture field, but for the time being he is experimenting with the "moviola." The Pasadenan manufacturing these machines intends them for the homes of the rich or aristocratic rural dwellers, although they may be adapted for schools, churches and clubs.

And when we stop to think that ten years ago there were only a half dozen film studios in Southern California, one of which was located in Glendale, we ask to know if the industry is not still a veritable child. The wonders of the twentieth century are certainly "goat-getters."

The writer remembers, if you will bear with recollections, when he heard the first "gramaphone" over one of the original switchboards in a small Illinois community which got its telephone, gramaphone and other innovations in kerosene lamp light.

First "Pitcher" show

Then we moved to a larger place with electric lights and saw our first "pitcher" show and became acquainted with the first typesetting machine, etc., etc., all since 1900.

Sometimes we wish that we were living in the days of Abraham Lincoln, for things are coming fast and furious. Electrical development has brought about great changes in our mode of living and there is no question but what this generation is enjoying the most wonderful era since the earth's creation.

Only last night we were reviewing the days of a year ago when the radio craze hit Glendale. And we can well remember the night in Washington, D. C., when a buddie of mine strode into the army secret service headquarters and informed me that the radio telephone was a reality. That is a story in itself, however, wherein a bright young Harvard student won a lieutenancy in the air service for his work.

Era of Change

Really, history of today is too much for comprehension. Why, the growth of Glendale, for instance, is so marvelous, so miraculous, so unreal that one must go away for a week or two to realize the multiplied population, buildings, stores, homes and cats.

There was a day when the writer knew almost everyone by name and address. Yes, I used to peddle The Glendale Evening News on rainy nights when the boys didn't show up, but now it is difficult to recollect the approximate vicinity in which the various streets are located.

It gives us a headache to think about it; for the growth of Glendale is as intoxicating as the wine of the grape that formerly grew on the land in which we are living.

FAVORS BRANCH OF U. C. IN CITY

Secretary Sanders of Local Chamber of Commerce To Make Survey

Secretary E. F. Sanders of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce is intrigued by the possibility of Glendale obtaining a location of the Southern Branch, University of California, as suggested by Marco Hellman, Los Angeles banker, at a gathering here the first of the week.

Indeed, Mr. Sanders is going to survey the situation and determine if it is a feasible proposition to present to the board of directors of the chamber at an early date, for he has reasons to believe there is room within the city limits for the institution.

In regards to the needs of the university branch Mr. Sanders intends to immediately ascertain what their plans call for. At present he is not acquainted with the general scheme, but feels it merits the fullest investigation.

It is pointed out by those who know conditions that a university site is not a matter of early action by the political forces which will be largely instrumental in determining the southern school's future, yet conditions are extremely favorable to Glendale.

HENRY CANTOR IS GUEST AT CLUB

Singer Gives Selections at Exchange Meeting; Penalize Benedict

Henry Cantor of 431 East Acacia avenue was the soloist yesterday noon in the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse at the weekly luncheon of the Exchange Club.

Three selections sung by Mr. Cantor were much applauded and he was extended a vote of thanks for his courtesy in attending the meeting. Harry Nielsen of 727 South Central avenue, Eagle Rock, was the accompanist.

The attendance prize, which was won by Fred S. Hill of 124 South Orange street, was two tickets for Mr. Cantor's recital September 22 under the auspices of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. This will precede his concert tour of the Orient.

The Community Service Band, which is being sponsored by the Exchange Club, is making splendid progress, according to Peter Niese of 133 North Brand boulevard, chairman of the band committee. He predicted that the club will be entertained by a band concert in the near future.

Plan Signposts

To investigate the erection of signposts at the entrances to the city, inviting visiting Exchangeites to attend the weekly luncheon, a committee was appointed consisting of F. C. Butler, W. B. Kelly and Attorney W. C. Anspach. All of them were present.

The question of fractions occupied a large portion of the meeting. The opinion prevailed that one-fourth and three-fourths make a whole. Maybe it was the other way around.

An interesting feature of the business of the day related to the recent matrimonial adventure of Exchangeite Art Sherborne, who took the great step last Saturday. As a penalty for having married without the knowledge or consent of the board of directors it was moved by Dr. Henry R. Harrower of 1510 East Broadway, and carried, that Mr. Sherborne be requested to bring his bride to the noon luncheon on August 22.

Dr. Harrower offered to present an oil painting of an Italian girl, which he purchased in England, to the Tuesday Afternoon Club in behalf of the Exchange Club. The date for the presentation was set for Wednesday noon, August 22.

Dr. John Zieg of San Francisco was a guest of the occasion. Others present included C. C. Coghlin, F. E. Elwood, Mike Kaufman, Dr. "Jim" Belyea, J. C. May, S. F. Bell, Fred E. Hoyt, W. C. Waring, B. L. Cline and George A. Whitaker.

Realtors Bow In Silent Tribute Of Respect To Late President's Memory

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff

A BRIEF but impressive tribute was paid to the memory of the late President Harding yesterday when the members of the Glendale Realty Board, assembled for their weekly luncheon, at the suggestion of Charles B. Guthrie, arose and stood with bowed heads, facing to the west, as a token of respect to the gallant leader who has laid down his life as a result of his strenuous labors for his country.

The Harding note was sounded again in a brief account that Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board, gave, telling of three personal meetings that he had had with the deceased president at Washington, especially in his account of one appearance of the late executive at a candidates' night at the National Press club during the last presidential campaign, when Warren G. Harding, among others, was invited to tell his comrades of the press his reasons for appealing to the country for support in his race for the high office that he later won.

Realtors' Obligations

Mr. Ingersoll was to have been accompanied here by W. L. Brent, second vice-president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, but the latter was called out of the city on important business, and it developed on Mr. Ingersoll to speak before the local organization. He dealt briefly but succinctly with the obligations that lie on the realtors of California, and especially of the southern part of the state, to hold fast to the strictest ethics of their profession in completing any transaction that they undertake with the newcomers who put their confidence in the real estate men they meet when buying property here.

Mr. Ingersoll related the movement that is now nearing fruition, by which the Los Angeles board is about to adopt a condensed code of ethics, based on the present extensive rules of the organization, which will be subscribed to by every new member of the board and which will be recommended to every similar organization in the country for adoption.

The continued support of the multiple listing system formed the subject of a report by James W. Pearson, who stated that there was considerable lack of interest shown on the part of many realtors as revealed in the hearings held by the committee, and added that a call is to be issued for a meeting on September 5, when a proposal will be advanced urging the formation of a group of those who favor the system, within the Glendale Realty Board, while those who do not care to adopt the system and work at it consistently will be permitted to remain outside of the proposed group. This move, it is asserted, will likely mean certain alterations in the by-laws of the organization, but it is believed that no objections will be interposed to the required changes.

Experts Will Talk

Vice-President A. M. Yale, who presided, stated that the board intends to carry out the suggestion offered by Dr. Jessie A. Russell following her return from the National Real Estate convention, that certain subjects that were discussed at the convention should form the subject of study at the meetings of the local board, and Dr. Russell stated that an effort will be made to have an expert on insurance loans address the meeting next week, with other experts on various subjects to follow weekly.

Dr. Russell has been notified that she has been appointed chairman of the real estate caravan that will go to the state convention at Sacramento in October, her territory being the San Fernando Valley, and she requested all those who intended or wished to join the caravan to notify the secretary of the board, Miss Winnifred Traver, within the next week.

Bob Jensen, the manager of the Egyptian Village cafe, where the luncheon was held, was introduced and made a brief speech of appreciation for the patronage of the Realty Board, and a photograph of the assemblage, which was one of the largest of the year, was taken by Ralph W. Browne.

COMPROMISE IN SUITS REJECTED

Los Feliz Taxpayers to File Demurrers in Cases Already Pending

The compromise proposed in the suits against the taxpayers in the Los Feliz district, filed by Steddom & Blanchard of Los Angeles, has been rejected by the committee appointed to conduct an investigation of the matter by the Los Feliz Tax Protective association. L. W. Chobe, chairman of the association, has issued the following notice to the defendants in these suits, showingg the stand taken by the committee:

Notice to Defendants in Los Feliz Tax Assessments

At a regular meeting of the Los Feliz Tax Protective association held August 6, 1923, reply to Steddom & Blanchard's proposal was left with the committee of five composed of L. W. Chobe, chairman; G. H. Wende, legal adviser; N. L. Dutton, Mrs. N. W. Terrill and Mrs. Fannie Stone.

On August 7, 1923, after a report had been received by committee from G. H. Wende and L. W. Chobe of thorough investigation made, the committee decided that the demand for moneys made by Steddom & Blanchard (except original assessment and interest) is not due them or legal, therefore the concessions made by them in writing August 6, 1923, to the organization are not accepted, and a refusal to pay any or all moneys, except the original assessment and accrued 10 per cent interest, was decided upon.

Twenty-one suits on which the time limit is up will be answered by filing demurrer Thursday, August 9, 1923. Thirty more cases will be answered by filing demurrer Monday, August 13, 1923, and other cases will be answered in the same manner as fast as they come into the office of the association, 102-A East Broadway, before the time limit expires.

Urged to Join

All those who have been or will be sued for this Los Feliz assessment, and do not wish to pay the exorbitant amount attached to the small original assessment, are invited to join this association which was organized by those who are vitally interested to fight this in a body. The organization feels that this is an injustice, and a possibility of a recurrence of this procedure must be eliminated, and now is the time, with the thought in mind, that in unity there is strength.

To explain in regard to cost to individuals to fight this case by joining the association is as follows: There is no charge for joining the association, and as to attorney's fees, will quote Attorney G. H. Wende's letter to me:

Glendale, Calif.,
August 6, 1923.

Mr. L. W. Chobe, Chairman,
Los Feliz Tax Protective Assn.
Dear Sir—

You have asked me what my charges are for legal services in Los Feliz Tax assessment cases.

Cost of Suits

I will make a flat charge of $5 to be paid me as a retainer and in full for each individual case. No further charge is to be made by me in any such individual case.

Filing fees in various cases to be paid by separate individuals as may be required, which amount would be $2 or $3, this amount to be returned to each individual after case is won.

(Signed) G. H. WENDE.
L. W. CHOBE, Chairman,
Los Feliz Tax Proteetive Assn.

Local Pastor, Wife See Harding's Body

According to telegraphic advices received late yesterday by The Glendale Evening News, the Rev. and Mrs. Harry G. Lucas of 247 North Isabel street were the third couple in line to view the body of the late president, Warren G. Harding, as he lay in state at the national capitol.

The Glendale pastor and his wife are visiting relatives in Washington, D. C., and Takoma Park, Md., after an extensive trip across country, including attendance at an educational council held by the Seventh Day Adventist denomination at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Rev. Lucas is in charge of educational work for the Southern California Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist church, with headquarters here.

Ralph Allan Visitor Here on Business

Ralph Allan, manager of the Pasadena theatre, the Crown city's leading vaudeville and photoplay theatre, was a business visitor in Glendale yesterday. He was formerly in charge of a local theatre.

C. M. Meech Family Enjoy Vacation Trip

An automobile vacation trip to Three Rivers, Oakland and Berkeley is now being enjoyed by a party from Glendale, including Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Meech of 816 South Glendale avenue, their two sons, Charles and Robert, and Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Harmon of 819 South Glendale avenue. The return trip from San Francisco probably will be via the coast route.

Mr. Meech is associated with J. E. Daugherty of 756 South San Fernando road in the operation of a garage at 410 West Los Feliz road. Mr. Daugherty recently returned from an automobile trip with friends from Los Angeles to Bishop, Mammoth Lake and the headwaters of the Owens river. Yosemite valley was entered over Tioga pass.

John Ericsson designed the first marine engine that could be carried below the water line of a ship.

BOXERS READY FOR BOUTS AT LODGE

Elks Show Tonight to Bring Classy Fighters Here in Band Benefit

Everything is ready for the first gong at the big Elks boxing show at the clubhouse on East Colorado tonight, when five bouts between the cream of the Pacific coast four round mitt slingers will be staged for the delectation of the sports who compose the lodge membership and for their guests who will be on hand to see the show. The entertainment is for the benefit of the Elks band, that plans to attend the annual state convention at Eureka next month, and it comes as the third show staged by the Jinks committee, headed by Ray I. Galvin, each of the two preceeding shows adding generously to the band's finances.

One of the best boys to be seen in action tonight is Young Farrell, a 122 pounder who is rated as the fastest and most scientific boxer of his weight on the coast. He is scheduled to meet Sammy Berger, another flash, and this bout is expected to prove one of the best of the evening. In another event two old rivals will meet when Frankie Novey and Ted Levin swap punches. These boys fought a dazzling battle at Vernon a month ago, and tonight's meeting is likely to prove another humdinger while it lasts.

The demand for tickets among the Elks and their friends has been fully up to expectations, according to Harry E. McCartney, another active member of the Jinks committee, and the big auditorium of the lodge will be packed to the doors for tonight's show, according to all the signs and signal smokes. It behooves anyone who wants to get a close-up of the bouts to be on hand early and to grab his seat in lots of time, McCartney says, for he predicts that there won't be a vacant seat in the house when he sends the first pair off at 8:30 p. m. sharp.

NEW COALER LAUNCHED

'Old Timer' Recalls Some Facts About 'Early Days' Before Honk Of Auto

By "OLD TIMER"

PASSING along the brilliantly lighted thoroughfare with hundreds of autos parked along the curb and on the adjacent side streets, and taking a station near the intersection of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, opposite the new Gateway Theatre, with all the colors of the precious gems of Mother Earth scintillating and gleaming on its front, with the well lighted market on the left and at the right the wares of the prosperous merchants displayed in brightly lighted windows, the "Old Timer" of less than twenty years ago was moved to reminiscence and make comparison between "Then" and "Now".

It was in the early winter of 1904 that the trail was followed from Fourth and Broadway, Los Angeles, at that time the southern limit of the retail district of the city, the corner now occupied by the Fifth street store being a harness shop with a big wooden horse to indicate that harness was made and repaired there. Out the old Broadway tunnel and to the northwest to the village of Burbank was an all day "trek" and a well-filled lunch box was given careful attention. The big, sleek brown horse trotted along with the surrey loaded with what the enterprising real estate agent hoped were good "prospects" for an alfalfa ranch of five acres located just across the tracks from the present business district of Burbank.

Those Happy Days!

As the party crossed the newly constructed tracks of the Pacific Electric at what is now the busy corner of San Fernando road and Brand boulevard, the attention of the newcomers was called to the possibilities of the valley when the line to Mt. Verdugo was completed and the trolley should supplant the old steam cars of the Salt Lake.

Crossing the track the village of Tropico, a little hamlet with big trees bordering the shady road, surrounded with patches of the delicious strawberries for which it was noted, with church spires rising through the tall trees, showing the splendid character of the people, was a vision not soon to be forgotten.

The alfalfa ranch was visited but not purchased at that time, as "having no vision" the price to the mid-westerners seemed all out of proportion to the possible income. Lunch was eaten under the big oak trees near Cahuenga Pass, the owner bringing out walnuts, figs and fresh fruit in the hospitable manner of the early Californians, who were glad of the chance visitor to the ranch. How different from the hordes of autos which are the bane of the orchardist of the present day.

P. E. In Operation

The Pacific Electric was opened for traffic New Year's day, 1905, and the following March the mid-westerners located in Glendale near the one and only grocery and meat market on the corner of Wilson avenue (Third street) and Glendale avenue.

The trip to Los Angeles was made by trolley or by fording the river on Los Feliz road, as neither the bridge at this point nor on Brand boulevard had been built at this time. Neither way took the passenger through the business street of the little hamlet seen in the first visit, and it was a wonder what had become of the shady street and village blacksmith shop and the church steeples.

The changes of time brought the mid-westerners near the old thoroughfare, but gone are the strawberry patches with the little brown men bending over their trays of crimson fruit and in their place are thousands of homes. Gone is the shady street and in its place a roaring highway over which thousands of autos pass daily and a traffic officer is as necessary as on Broadway, Los Angeles. The theatregoers stand in line at the box office and only Time, the unchanging, can record the marvelous changes which have been and are to be.

World's largest oil storage tank will be at Wilmington, covering an area of twenty acres with a capacity of 1,750,000 barrels.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—Industrial workers in Los Angeles last year earned more than the net earnings of all the national banks in the United States. Such is the information in a report by the United States census bureau.

There are 7762 national banks in the country and they rolled up an aggregate net earnings sum of $240,336,000, while Los Angeles wage earners drew $276,912,168.

Products turned out by the metropolitan district of Los Angeles last year totaled $959,806,503, which is declared to be far ahead of the value of all the gold in circulation in the United States.

A few years ago Los Angeles, the city of "climate and tourists," was looked upon as unsuitable for manufacturing enterprises, but last year it turned out manufactured goods that exceeded in value the $683,332,908 credited as the operating income of all the railroads in the country in 1921, the report continues.

More graphic than this the figures show that the value of goods made here was greater than the value placed by the census bureau on all the land in the combined states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware, Wyoming and New Mexico, and would have purchased all the farm machinery used in those states, with New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio thrown in just to make good measure.

The figures were compiled after a thorough survey. The information came from thousands of industrial plants who replied to a carefully prepared questionnaire sent out by the Chamber of Commerce. The gathering of these facts required several months.

Another significant feature in the industrial advancement of Los Angeles is that the metropolitan district here alone scored a greater total of manufactured goods than did any of the twenty-two eastern states usually looked upon as manufacturing territory.

In eighteen states the amount of capital invested in manufacturing enterprises is less than the capital invested here. Still the amount of capital invested and the total of goods produced in a single year is greater in Los Angeles than any one of these eighteen states.

For an example: On a capital of $685,184,997 plants here in one year turned out products amounting to $959,806,503. Compared with some states, this is an enviable record, for, in some instances, such as South Carolina and a number of eastern centers, the margin between capital and manufactured goods runs less than $6,000,000.

In summing up the survey, the report shows that the gain in 1921 production over 1920 amounted to $12,173,956, and the gain of 1922 over 1921 amounted to $75,887,862.

Billy Whiskers

By Frances Trego Montgomery

Nannie stepped in a pail of sauerkraut in the grocery cellar. It smelt badly. All around them were apples, while overhead hung hams, sides of bacon, dressed chickens, and so on.

On seeing these, Billy exclaimed, "We are in luck, for here is all any goat could desire for a meal. Now we can eat to our heart's content, without any fear of being disturbed."

"But someone might come down any minute and find us," objected Nannie.

"Bang! Bang, went a loud noise overhead, right at the entrance of the cellar, and immediately it became black as pitch again.

"My! What was that?" cried Nannie, with fluttering heart.

"Nothing but the slamming of the cellar door," explained Billy "And now we will have to stay here until someone comes and opens it. That will probably not be until tomorrow morning."

But they did not have to stay that long, though they did have to wait until about midnight, when they heard someone fussing with the padlock on the door.

"Who can be trying to get in this cellar this time of night?" whispered Nannie to Billy.

"Thieves, I expect. Don't be frightened! Keep still and I'll give them the scare of their lives. Our white coats, and our eyes shining in the darkness will scare them terribly. They will think they have seen two ghosts," at once suggested the resourceful Billy.

So Billy and Nannie kept perfectly still and waited for the thieves or whoever it was coming down the steps. They were walking very quietly and without a light, and soon the goats could feel that they were approaching them. Until now they had kept their heads lowered so that the thieves could not see the shine of their eyeballs, but now they raised them quickly and turned their heads in the direction from which the persons were approaching.

A muffled scream followed by a groan greeted this movement of theirs. And a voice said, "Dear Lord, do forgib me- I neber, no, neber, intended to take dem chickens! Cross my heart, I didn't!" and the blackest darky they had ever seen dropped on his knees before them. They saw him by the gleam of a flashlight a second burglar was carrying in his hand. But when the light fell on two objects with white beards and burning eyes, he dropped the light and ran headlong for the stairs.

(You can see now how Billy and Nannie are going to get out of the cellar.)

CARING FOR THE CONTROL LINKAGES

When you have the oil can in hand next time, don't forget to bestow a squirt upon each of the motion points of the various control linkages, after cleaning them of the dirt to which their exposed positions subjects them. Remember that the accelerator pedal and connections and the throttle-valve stem are in motion nearly all the time you are driving, and, if serious wear takes place, lost motion and uncertain speed control, as wall as an air-leak into the carburetor will result. Moreover, loose control linkages rattle annoyingly. Bear in mind, also, that your life may depend upon the brake control rods, so be sure that all the cotter-pins at their joints are in place. The brake linkages are subject to mud and road splash and the parts may rust together and stick unless kept well oiled. Hard operating and unequal acting brakes result from stuck brake-rod connections, and, when the two brakes of a pair do not "bite" equally there is abnormal tire and brake-lining wear on the hard-worked side, the liability of skidding is increased and stopping ability reduced. The brake shafts require regular oiling or they will stick in their bearings. Oil the emergency brake ratchet, or wear will result and it will fail to stay set, and don't neglect the spark control and clutch operating linkages, the latter being a hard worked part.

Use of Manual Spark Control

T. D. writes: The engine of my new ——— car makes a spark knock, during slow hill climbing, and even when I "step on" the accelerator suddenly on level going This car has automatic spark control, with hand timing as well, and the instruction book says that the manual control should be used only at starting the engine. The manufacturers tell me that the spark setting is right as it is, but that it can be made a little later, if I wish it, although they do not advise this, but state that ignition can be retarded by hand on steep hills. Is this advice right?

Answer: Yes. If the setting were made later you would probably not get as good fuel economy, especially at high engine speeds, and there would be greater heating. It is perfectly good practice to use the manual control on steep hills and during sudden acceleration. The advice contained in the booklet, as to using the manual retard only at starting, is probably intended to keep careless users from habitually running with a late spark, and thus wasting gasoline, and is not intended to be taken literally by well informed users. The earlier the spark can be carried, in reason, the better are the results.

Gears Stick in Mesh

J. M. B. writes: In starting my car from rest, I have considerable trouble in unmeshing low speed, preparatory to getting into second. Have inspected all parts involved, but can find nothing wrong. What do you think the trouble is?

Answer: Are you sure that the transmission case is sufficiently supplied with a heavy oil or very light grease, which flows readily, but still possesses sufficient body to maintain a film over the gear faces? If not, shifting will be made much easier by supplying it. If teh low gears can be readily unmeshed, when the car is standing still on a level floor, with the engine idle, we feel sure that there is nothing wrong with the mechanism, but that faulty lubrication is the cause of the trouble. You have, of course, examined the shifting mechanism and assured yourself that no parts have become bent?

Horsepower Rating Formula

H. R. C. asks: Will you please give me the formula used by motor vehicle commissioners to determine the horsepower of engines?

Answer: The formula generally used is as follows: Multiply together the cylinder bore, expressed in inches, squared, and the number of cylinders and divide the product by 2.5. For example assume a four-cylinder engine with a bore of 3⅜ (3.375) inches. The square of 3.375 is 11.39, which, multiplied by four, gives 45.56. Dividing this product by 2.5 gives 18.2 as the nominal horsepower of such an engine.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE MAPLE SEEDS

Once upon a time Uncle Wiggily was walking through the woods with Nurse Jane, his muskrat lady housekeeper. All of a sudden something fluttered in front of Nurse Jane's face, and she made a dash at it with her burdock leaf fan.

"Oh, it's a big bug after me!" cried Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"Why are you giggling that way?" Nurse Jane asked.

"Because that isn't a bug at all," chuckled the bunny. "It is only a maple seed, like a tiny airship, sailing along to find a place to plant itself."

"What do you mean?" asked Nurse Jane. "How can a maple seed be like an airship?"

"I'll show you," offered Mr. Longears. He picked up from the ground one of the seeds from a maple tree. The seed part was a little round, green pod, with something in it like a flat bean, or pea. And spreading out from the seed was a long, thin bit of green, shaped like the wing of a dragon fly. "Watch the maple seed fly," said Uncle Wiggily.

He let go of it. The maple seed fluttered toward the earth, but the wind, catching the wing part, blew it along like a toy balloon.

"That is how the maple scatters its seeds far away, so more trees may grow up," explained the rabbit gentleman. "Of course not every seed takes root and grows. Many are picked up and eaten."

"Just as this one is going to be!" cried a jolly little voice, and down out of a tree darted Rusty Tail, the red squirrel. In his little paws he picked up the flying maple seed Uncle Wiggily had dropped. Then sitting up on his hind legs, and holding the tiny green airship in his front paws, which were almost like hands, Rusty gnawed at and ate the seed in the round end of the flier.

"You act as though you liked those," said Nurse Jane.

"They aren't as good as nuts, but I eat them when I am hungry," the red squirrel chattered. "Oh, what lots of maple seeds!" he cried.

"And they are flying all over," said Nurse Jane. For, indeed, the broad wing parts of the seeds were caught by the wind and sailed far, far off through the woods.

Nurse Jane said it was good to know how thus the maple seeds were scattered. Then she and Uncle Wiggily said good-by to Rusty Tail, the red squirrel, and went to the hollow stump bungalow.

It was about two days after this when Uncle Wiggily was hopping alone in the woods, that the Skillery Scallery Alligator jumped out from behind a bush and caught the rabbit gentleman before the bunny knew what was happening.

"Now I'm going to take you off to my den and hide you there," growled the 'Gator. "I'll leave you there and I'll go get the Wolf, the Fox and Bob Cat, and we'll nibble your ears."

So the Alligator shut Uncle Wiggily up in a rocky den built of big stones piled one on top of the other to make a cave. Locking the stone door, the 'Gator waddled away, saying:

"I'll soon be back with the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat!"

what to do. There were cracks in the stones and the bunny could look out, but the cracks were too small for him to crawl through.

Suddenly, as he looked, the wind blew in through the cracks some of the winged maple seeds. And, seeing them, Uncle Wiggily had an idea.

"These things are flat and dry, like paper," said the bunny. "I have my fountain pen with me, very luckily. I'll write a message on some of these winged seeds and toss them out of the cracks. Some of the maple seed messages may reach Nuse Jane and she can come and let me out!"

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily wrote on a number of the winged seeds of the maple tree this message:

"I am in the 'Gator's den! Come and get me out!"

These seeds he tossed out of the cracks in the cave. The kind wind blew the seeds to the hollow stump bungalow. Nurse Jane picked them up, and when she read Uncle Wiggily's message she called the Police Dog.

"We will save Uncle Wiggily!" barked the dog. Off he ran, with Nurse Jane and Uncle Butter. They reached the 'Gator's den before the bad chap got back with the Wolf, the Fox and the Bob Cat. "We will save you!" barked the Police Dog, and, breaking open the cave, they helped the rabbit gentleman out.

"Maple seeds are useful for something else than making new trees," laughed the rabbit as he hopped home with his friends. And you can imagine how angry the 'Gator was, and the Fox, Bob Cat and Wolf, also, when they had no ears to nibble.

And if the spelling book doesn't throw a lot of its very hardest words at the ink and splash the paper of pins, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the day's about Uncle Wiggily and the jay's

Timely Views of World Topics

"LONDON AND PARIS TO VANISH IN NEXT WAR," EDITOR SAYS

Pleading the cause of France in the United States, W. L. Warden, managing editor of the Continental edition of the London Daily Mail, who has just reached this country on a pleasure trip, said recently French insistence on a specific reparation basis was due mainly to the lack of policy of Great Britain and the United States.

"Both countries," he said, "are opportunists."

He admitted frankly he was a special pleader for France and asked that his views be taken as those of a purely private citizen.

His Sympathies With France

"I do not wish to be quoted as the managing editor of the Continental edition of the Mail. I have my own views of the situation. I have lived in France twenty-five years. I am a friend and admirer of the French, and I think as Frenchmen do."

"People do not understand the causes of the steps taken in the Ruhr. Some sections of nations look upon the invasion as pure cupidity and the desire to consolidate the steel industry of the Ruhr with that of Eastern France. But I don't think this was in the minds of the French statesmen.

"The French situation was desperate and far beyond mere personal profiteering. The situation is just this: She must have reparations in some form, with $31,000,000,000 in gold as a basis. She has been one-third devastated, she has 1,500,000 dead, and what energy she has got is going to be swallowed up in the work of rebuilding.

Must Rebuild the Nation

"It is here that her position differs so vastly. She is not in the position of other countries, notably Germany, Great Britain and the United States, engaging in big industrial work. She must put up what has been destroyed."

Warden was asked if he thought France was not mistaken in policy that fostered hatred of a nation having 30,000,000 more population, a nation increasing rapidly, while France, with her 40,000,000 was practically stationary.

"That, of course," he said, "is the crux of the matter. But the French believe the existing hatred could not be worse—that if the Ruhr had not been seized Germany would have marched troops over their border within two years.

"Germany has been secretly planning for war. She has been developing her aircraft through civil purchases, and building has been going on constantly, especially in Spain."

This he believes, is the reason for the French creation of the greatest air force in the world. France, he said, has now eighty-five squadrons of airplanes.

Not Aimed at England

"But it is a mistaken notion," he said, "to think they are aimed at Great Britain. There is no real quarrel between the two countries. They have absolutely nothing to quarrel over, and what is going on today is merely contentious."

He painted a gray picture of the future, speaking of "the next war" in a tone tinged with inevitability.

"The next war," he said, "will last but a few days. I mean it literally; and in those few days, with the new air and gas attacks which have been planned by headquarters' staffs, London and Paris will be wiped out in a night."

"In the next war," he added, "the civilian populations will die, men, women and children. It will be short, and the losers will be hurled back into slavery."

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 19 and go with a fellow 22. He is real good to me and I truly love him. But still I like another fellow besides him. When this other fellow sees my sister he always asks her how I am. My "steady" says there isn't another girl he could love as he loves me, and he asked me to marry him. I told him I would. But I am not positive about it. We are not engaged. Is it necessary to be? He is awfully jealous. I feel that if we get married we won't agree because he is good-looking and I am not. Should I keep company with my "steady," or should I disappoint him and take interest in others? I feel that it won't be right to drop him after I have gone with him eleven months.

I am so worried nowadays that I simply don't care to go out. I always have the "steady" fellow on my mind. He told me he would like to have me go to his sister's for a visit, but I haven't decided on it yet. I am afraid to go because they might not like me.

Please give me good advice about things.

EMERGINE K.

It is evident from your letter that you do not truly love the young man with whom you have been keeping company. You seem to want to give him up, but are lacking in courage. If you have tired of him, as your letter sounds, don't try to go on deceiving him. He will be hurt at first when he finds you no longer love him, but time will soften his wound and after a while he will learn to care for some one else. To marry a man you do not love would be most unwise.

You seem to be very lacking in self-confidence. The fact that the young man is better looking than you are would not cause disagreement after marriage. Often a husband is better looking than his wife, but she has enough charm to hold him anyway. You may be sure you are attractive to the young man who wants to marry you.

If you no longer care for the young man, it would not be advisable to visit his sister. But you should not stay away because you are afraid you will not be liked. Think of yourself with more respect. You are just as God made you, individual, with no one else in the world like you. That fact alone ought to encourage you and help you to have respect for yourself.

Usually when a girl says she will marry a young man he considers himself engaged to her. Perhaps you specified that you would marry him when the time came, but did not care to be engaged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years old and I have been going with a boy one whole year. He comes to see me every Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday nights, and sometimes oftener, but never less. He has asked me to marry him and we think we can live peacefully. We go to the show every week. He does not go with other girls. Would you advise me to marry him? B. H.

If you love the man, marry him, because it is evident that he loves you.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If a lady goes into a soda shop and a young man comes in and pays for her ticket, should she thank him as she leaves, providing he is remaining in the shop?

Is it proper for one to eat the crust of a pie?

BLUE EYES.

The young lady should try not to permit the young man to pay for her soda, because he did not invite her to have it. If, however, he is unreasonable and insists it is better to let him pay than to have a scene. Then he should be thanked at the time he pays for the soda.

The crust of pie should be eaten.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

Art Dwight knew the big chief had an important problem to solve and one requiring time when the order came to pack grips and prepare for a stay at Pinehurst. In his forest cabin the famous detective and criminologist, Payne Carlu, had pierced many an intricate puzzle. Art nodded and smiled. There were fish to be caught at Pinehurst.

"It's the Dixon case," the lad told himself. "The old man is going to take it over himself."

Carlu offered no explanations.

"This straw bag, the one that looks as if it were about to break open any minute, is the one to guard," he said. "Without pretending to notice it, see that it is never out of sight." The lad looked out of the train window, the buckle of his shoe hooked over the strap of the precious bag, while the detective read the score of a light opera. Art smiled again. Everything pointed to adventure.

As they walked up the trail to the cabin the elder man grunted with approval. "No one has been around yet this year. Path's undisturbed." They crossed a creek, walking under the rafters of an old mill and stepping from stone to stone, and climbed up a bank on the other side. Within a few minutes they had a fire burning in the cabin and Carlu had the bag opened and a pile of papers and objects before him. Following his custom, Art visited the kitchen to see if the stove, fuel and dishes were in readiness. He scribbled a list of food on a paper, got his hat, and left. It was not far to the crossroads store.

At the creek the lad jumped from the higher bank, swung on one of the rafters of the old mill, then landed on the soft earth. In an hour he was back preparing dinner. Carlu worked until early morning while Art tried to keep awake by going over the fingerprint case, oiling the revolvers and trying the batteries of the flash lights. Finally they turned in.

The next morning was one of the most painful in the career of Payne Carlu. For when he rubbed the soap out of his eyes and entered the room of the fireplace he found all of his papers and evidence gone. He wasted no time in regrets over not having brought a dog and, true to his training, started at once looking for something by which to trace the thieves.

"Don't touch a thing," he ordered Art, and then, as if it were no contradiction, demanded that the lad bring him his fingerprint case. From the box the detective took some white powder and thin squares of celluloid. He examined the table upon which the papers had been placed, dusted powder on the doorknob, the windowsills and many other places, and then sat down heavily.

"They used rubber gloves," he said. "This bunch, as might be expected if they were in on the Dixon case, are old-timers. I've wasted time and they've got away."

"I was wondering," said Art, "why you didn't start chasing them in the first place."

"They're miles away by now. Had a car down the road, probably, and have made two or three shifts or have scattered. If I could find a good print I'd be willing to give up the papers, because the chances are ten to one the man or men who got in here have records and their marks would be better than their photographs." The detective had his hat now and beckoned to Art, who seized the print case and followed.

"Don't need that," Carlu growled. "Shoes don't leave fingerprints."

Art clung to the case and dogged the other's steps along the trail toward the creek.

"Two of them," the detective muttered. "Just as I thought."

When they reached the creek Carlu leaned toward the rafter for the swing across when Art shouted:

"See," the lad was excited, "that rafter! I knew you would do it. It's the natural thing for any man crossing the creek." He had the case open and his meaning was clear.

Carlu boosted Art up on the rafter well away from the spot which was seized in crossing, then handed the boy the powder and celluloid. Art was excited and proud as he saw the results of his work. In six places he had found prints.

"Mean three men," he said, "and I've got both hands of each." Carlu had said there were but two. Here was another but briefer triumph for the lad, for the detective, smiling, answered, "One is yours from yesterday."

Back in the city, after the prints had been traced, there came the arrests which meant the solving of the Dixon case and the great Carlu was acclaimed once more.

"You get two weeks' fishing on pay," he said to Art. "It's barely possible I would not have thought of that rafter."

AWAKES FROM LONG SLEEP

Girl Plays Violin Silent For 160 Years

Miss Florence Richardson and her 160-year-old Amati violin

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. — The thirty-year sleep of a 160-year-old Amati violin has been broken.

The fiddle, born in 1763, had remained untouched in the home of a wealthy and elderly broker here for lo, these many years, its slumbers undisturbed.

One day the broker stopped at the Casino in Central Park. He heard the Studio Girls' orchestra and was struck by the playing and the beauty of Florence Richardson, violinist.

He remembered his prize fiddle, remembered that it was moldering from disuse.

Miss Richardson now uses that violin, and the ancient Amati, under the guidance of the fair Florence, seems to have taken to modern jazz with all the vim and vigor of modern youth.

With a $250 bow, also presented by her wealthy admirer, Miss Richardson has succeeded in coaxing from the precious old instrument all of the richneses of tone which made its maker famous.

The instrument is valued at $10,000.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THAT SOLICITOUS HOSTESS!

I know she thinks she is the perfect hostess.

I know they all do—those women who are so preoccupied with their desire to see that you have what you want to eat, and plenty of it, that they never allow the attention of the table to wander for more than a minute at a time from the important business of eating.

Their idea of an absolute tragedy would be to have a guest leave their table without having eaten as much as he possibly could. They change the medical dictum that everyone should rise from the table a little hungry, into "everyone should rise from the table absolutely stuffed."

If you do not like to stuff, they assume or pretend to assume something wrong with the food and keep you busy reassuring them.

Conversation at such a table goes something like this:

"Do Have Some More Roast"

Your Host: "How do you like your new car? I hear you made a pretty good trade with your old sedan. How did you put it over?"

You (beaming at the opportunity to tell a tale that redounds much to your shrewdness): "Well, you see I knew the agent . . ."

Your Hostess: "Now, Mr. Barclay, do have some more roast. You had the tiniest helping the first time. You won't have any more? Well (archly), either you don't like beef or you must be dieting. I don't believe you need to diet. If I don't diet I guess you don't need to."

You (not being in a position to suggest she ought to diet) explain that you think the first helping was large.

"Or Some More Peas?"

"Well, some more peas then." You point out that you still have peas and potatoes.

"These peas came right out of our garden," insists the hostess, "you simply must have some more," and refills your half full dish in spite of you.

Beneath the weight of peas and potatoes and beef the car is buried completely. The garden motif has been inaugurated by the mention of peas and considerable is said about gardens, punctuated by the hostess' catalogue of the exact number of jars of currant jelly and beans and grape juice and cherries she put up—"Forty jars of currant jelly—or was it thirty? No, it yas thirty last year and this year," etc., etc.

Later, by considerable tact, you get the conversation back to cars and again your opportunity comes. This time you get as far as, "And he offered me $900 and I said, 'Take it away man,' "—when the salad is served. There is a mayonaise on the table and you start to use it, but the hostess has an anxious eye upon you. She is a perfect hostess and she does so want you to be made comfortable (in stomach)! So she interrupts to ask if you don't prefer a French or Russian dressing. You say you are quite satisfied. "Are you sure?" she insists. You are sure. She lets you use it but watches you anxiously.

You make one more attempt to take up the thread of your remarks, "And I made out I was going to start the car and drive away and he . . ."

"I am afraid that lettuce isn't as fresh as it should be," declares the hostess. "Now, don't just feel obliged to eat it. I'll get you some sliced tomatoes instead. I don't know why these market men can't bring me fresh stuff."

This time you give up.

I know she thinks she is the perfect hostess—that type of woman—so thoughtful, so solicitous. Wouldn't she be surprised if she knew what you are thinking about her?

Last week I wrote about pickling cucumbers by the old-fashioned "pickle jar" method. Today I am going to deal with putting them up in sealed glass jars.

To Can Small Cucumber Pickles: Wash and wipe two quarts of small, unripe cucumbers. Put them into a stone jar and cover with a boiling brine made from one cup of salt to one quart of water; let stand for twenty-four hours. Then heat, in the same brine, to near boiling point, drain, wipe the cucumbers and cover with cold water. Bring them to the boiling point in this water, drain, then cook a few of them at a time for ten minutes in two quarts of cider vinegar boiled with two red peppers cut small. If you wish a sweet pickle, you may add a cupful of sugar to this vinegar. You may also add mixed spices to it. Put the cucumbers right into sterilized glass jars, from the boiling vinegar, and when the jar is full add enough of the hot vinegar to rise to jar-top, then adjust a new rubber, put on cover and completely seal. Invert to test for leaks while the jars are cooling, then label and store. If a jar is found to be leaky, simply sterilize another jar and transfer the pickles to it.

To Sterilize the Glass Jars: Wash the jar and its glass top; place it on a rack in a pan. Cover with cold water and heat this water gradually to the boiling point, allowing it to boil for fifteen minutes. Remove jar from water, drain and keep it hot until you put the hot pickles into it (otherwise it is apt to crack). Some women keep the jars hot by wrapping them in towels wrung out of hot water. Also be sure to keep the hot jars out of a draught.

To Test Empty Jars for Leaks: Of course it saves a good deal of Trouble if you test your empty jars for leaks before filling them with the food to be canned. To do this, partly fill the jar with cold water, put on a new rubber, place glass cap over it, and clamp down side wire so as to seal completely. Then invert it and let stand on its glass cap for some time. If the jar is imperfect it will show signs of leakage. In that case do not try to use it—although sometimes the wires can be bent so as to remedy that trouble.

BEAUTY CHATS

EDNA KENT FORBES

AUGUST TROUBLES

Some people suffer so much from gnats and midges and such little flying pests, that the hottest months are a trial to them. Besides being uncomfortable, the bites are disfiguring.

A good way to keep them away is to use a little powder made by mixing camomile flowers with violet sachet powder. The camomile flowers are usually already crushed to a powder when they are bought.

To keep flies from houses and porches, or picnic parties, buy quassia chips soak one handful in a covered jar with two or three quarts of water. Pour off after an hour. This is cheap enough to sprinkle about liberally.

Hot perspiring hands are another August trouble. One-third powdered borax and two-thirds talcum is a good cooling powder which will keep them dry. Plunging the hands into a borax solution, a scant teaspoonful of borax to a pint of hot water, is often effective for more severe cases.

Bathing face and neck and hands with witch hazel is another good way to keep cool, to heal skin eruptions or fly bites, and to have an astringent treatment all at once for witch hazel shrinks the pores.

Sunburn and freckles are the worst of the late summer problems. You can't, of course, go comfortably and unconcernedly about without a hat if you want a fair skin. If you don't want to bother with wide-brimmed, dark-lined hats, you must carry always a dark parasol, and even then you will burn a little. A lotion made of one-third lemon juice, one-third rose water and one-third glycerine is a good bleach. Time honored buttermilk is splendid and not so drying, emulsion of almonds is good too, and a lotion made by mixing four tablespoonsful of milk to one of glycerine, with a teaspoonful of ammonia added, is also recommended. Many good freckle lotions can be purchased ready made.

Anxious—As there is a loss of poise, which really is the cause for blushing, the cure is often brought about through restoration of the poise. A simple method is to catch hold of yourself before the blush, and concentrate on taking and holding for three counts, a deep full breath. Repeat several times if needed. This practise will do two things: relieve the mind of self-consciousness and also equalize the circulation by flooding the system with oxygen. There would be no cause for a blush when these two conditions are normal.

P. C.—No artificial gloss applied to the hair is good for it. The shampoo did not cause the gray hair, it was merely more noticeable. The pilocarpine tonic will help this condition. You may also tint the hair with henna so it will not affect the natural shade of your hair, yet at the same time make the gray hairs less noticeable.

Worried—Cucumber juice will act as a harmless bleach for freckles but no bleach will keep you from accumulating new freckles so long as you expose yourself to the sun.

Tomorrow—Moles.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Important Notice—

Readers of this column who address inquiries to Dr. Peters must not expect replies unless they are willing to comply with the simple rules of the department. Stamped envelopes enclosed with inquiries for replies must be self-addressed.

It is impossible for Dr. Peters to take time to address several hundred envelopes each day. Furthermore, it is often impossible to make sure of the correct spelling of your names; a great many replies have recently been returned undelivered because of this.

Write your name, street number, city and state in full on an envelope, stamp it and enclose it with your inquiry. Otherwise, it will be impossible for Dr. Peters to consider your request for information.—The Editor.

"Dear Doctor Lulu:

"I am only a young school girl and am quite sure I am several pounds over weight, and, as all the new styles require slim figures, I am extremely anxious to reduce. So won't you please help me? I am just sixteen years old and weigh 132 pounds. Just imagine! I am rather tall, (5 feet, 2 inches) but even so, I don't want our dinky school elevator to stall under my excess weight. I sent for your booklet about a week ago, but didn't have horse sense enough to send a self-addressed envelope. But let bygones be bygones—I'm sending for another.

"It has quite often been said that worrying will make one thin, but it doesn't seem to affect me so. I just recently discovered that the mentality of my mother wasn't just what it should have been. The thoughts of this have made me so gloomy and unresponsive that I am losing my school friends and am doing the poorest school work I have ever done in all my life. In the elementary school I was at the head of all my classes. I am now a sophomore in high school, and in all my school life I have never received a "D", but I fear I shall get one on my next report. Dad graduated from high school with honors and I want to do the same, but if I keep on worrying over this affair, I doubt very much if I shall.

"There is still another thing which bothers me. It is my detestable pug nose. I bought a nose shaper a few days ago, hoping it would make my nose half way decent, but the only thing it seems to do is to make my breathing difficult, thus causing me to breathe through my mouth. This I only do when wearing the shaper. Do you think the shaper will do away with my pug nose if I wear it each night? I can't for the life of me, see why pug nosed people get married and raise a whole family of pug nosed children. (I happen to be the only unfortunate one in our family,) Believe me, if I can't shape my nose differently it certainly won't be my fault if the next generation have pug noses;—for I shall be a prim, old maid school marm.—Pug Nose Dot."

Dear Dot:

You must stop, immediately, worrying about your mother's mentality. Lots of altogether lovely people are not overstocked mentally and the fact that you have scored so high in your classes shows that you have not inherited her characteristics nor need you ever be afraid that you might develop them. You keep on doing your studying and good reading—exercise for the brain—all your life and you need have no fear at all.

Sorry I can't be so hopeful about the pug nose! I like pug noses—always wanted one. Seems to me all the pug nosed people I know are nice. I wouldn't wear the shaper if it obstructs the breathing. It might have some effect in moulding your nose—I don't know. Of course, if your nose is actually deformed, you can have some reshaping done by a skillful plastic surgeon. Not a beauty specialist! When you marry—I predict you will; all pug nosed girls marry—if you have a pug nosed baby, begin when it is tiny to pull its nose down very gently a little every day. Perhaps you can train it in the way it should go.

Salvation Army meetings are being held in Glendale every Wednesday evening according to Captain H. M. Scott who led the band of Salvationists in their concert and services here last night.

Twelve singers and musicians, including former Staff Captain Ayre, an inspirational speaker, attracted quite a throng at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway last evening.

Captain Scott's meetings are scheduled for Glendale, Pasadena, Sawtelle and Los Angeles corners. He states his musicians are volunteers, but one or two of them gave evidence of professional training.

BRIEF MEMORIAL FOR DEAD RULER

Legion Post Plans Services To Render Tribute to Harding's Memory

Definite plans for a memorial service in honor of President Harding have been completed by the American Legion, Post 250, of Tujunga. A short service will be held in Legion hall, Sunset boulevard and El Centro street, Friday morning at ten o'clock, in cooperation with the churches. The public is invited to attend and participate.

All stores and business houses have been asked by the Legion to close for the half day in respect to the late chief executive's memory. It is expected that they will comply with this request. The Post also issued pictures of the late president to the stores to be displayed in the windows draped in black.

The churches will hold special services, to be announced later.

Enlarge Poultry Plant

P. Desjardin, poultry man, has purchased another lot adjoining his property on the east from Charles Furlong. He has been operating on the Weeks system on one acre and has been so successful that additional room is needed. Several buildings were recently added to the ones already built to accommodate several hundred chicks raised on the place this spring. Mr. Desjardin plans to build a stone residence on his property later in the season.

Building continues unabated, and many homes and places of business are being completed, ranging in value from $1,000 to $10,000 and in one or two instances the figures will probably go above that mark.

For several months work has been progressing steadily on a magnificent building on an equally magnificent site at the eastern edge of Tujunga. Mrs. Colburn is building a plant on a knoll north of the boulevard that is to be something entirely different in the way of sanitariums.

Many of the features will be radical departures from methods now in use and the establishment, when completed, will be one of the finest in existence. Complete details of this will be given later as the construction work nears completion.

Rush New School

Work on the new school will be started as soon as the excavation work is completed. Owing to the rocky formation of the ground this work is proceeding slowly. The school system when completed, will comprise three units, including a fine auditorium, the whole to ost over $50,000. With the population increasing 100 per cent each year for the last three years and with indications of a continued influx of home-seekers, the demands on the school have overtaxed the capacity and last year temporary bungalows were built to accommodate the overflow.

The increasing population and establishing of a rural route out of the Tujunga office have overtaxed the postoffice also, with the result that a new building is being erected to accommodate the local and rural delivery service. The foundation has been laid, and bricklayers are at work on the walls. This property is owned by Judge H. H. Breidt, president of the Tujunga Chamber of Commerce.

A real home for convalescents has been completed on Hillhaven road, with all modern accommodations for treating sickness.

New McGroarty Home

A new home of brick and stone has been under construction for John Steven McGroarty since the fire which destroyed his home early in the spring. This residence of the well-known playwright includes a small porch, not piazza, but just porch, where the author may receive a few of his friends and neighbors and the Millionaires of Happiness and Contentment club.

An art studio and exchange is being built on Michigan avenue by Laura Lee Sweet, who has paintings on exhibit at the Glendale Art association this month. Artistic grounds will be a feature of the construction.

An addition has been found necessary to accommodate the increasing congregation at the Community church, and plans have been made which are expected to materialize in the near future, for a 72x74-foot addition of one story. Construction work will be for the allowance of an additional story that is expected to be in demand soon.

George Twitchell, a manufacturer of artificial flowers in Los Angeles, has started building on his property near San Ysidro on El Centro. He plans a stone residence.

Stringing Wires

The Southern California Edison company has a crew of men busy erecting poles and running service lines along Michigan avenue and in the Olive Grove tract at Sunland.

A residence has been completed at Glorietta and Los Angeles streets for Albert J. Seighlitz.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Dalzell of Long Beach have purchased property in Tujunga.

A house and garage is being built for A. E. Wierengen on Tinker street.

J. M. Goode, realtor, has sold his property at Walnut and Manzanita and has bought the Larsen place near the corner of Michigan and Walnut, where he plans to make his home.

A four-room bungalow with modern built-in features has been completed for Holmes Hagaman on Citrus avenue.

Many other places are under construction. The sales records of the Independent Lumber company show an increase of 100 per cent in business over the same period of last year to date.

MONTROSE

ANNUAL MEETING OF C. C. IS HELD

Work of Past Year, Reviewed by President, Shows Results

By W. C. KAUNE
Secretary of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce

On Tuesday evening, August 7, the regular monthly as well as the annual meeting of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce was held in Montrose bank building, at which there was a large attendance. Mrs. Brown was introduced to the members as the new postmistress of Montrose, which office has just been established and is located in the drug store at the corner of Montrose and Honolulu avenues. Messrs. Belanger and Turner reported favorably on the gas situation, stating that the pipes were being laid up Verdugo road and that it would be but a very short time before Montrose would be supplied with gas. The Automobile Club of Southern California will establish red light signals on Ocean View and Montrose avenue as reported by Fred Anderson.

There is a petition being circulated among the residents of Montrose, which is being signed without any dissent against the establishment of a sanitarium for tubercular, asthmatic and narcotic patients within the limits of Montrose. The establishment of such an institution has created quite a furore among the residents of this place and Messrs. Reinhard and Skinner were appointed a committee to interview the county board of supervisors to ascertain what can be done to abate this institution.

Tells Achievements

President J. L. Brown in retiring for the year just closed, gave a short resume of the things accomplished by the Montrose Chamber of Commerce for the past year, it being the initial year. The four outstanding features of the accomplishments are the Bank of Montrose, the work done by the road committee, the new $45,000 school building which will be ready for occupancy the fore part of September, and the postoffice. There are a number of other matters which have been taken up and brought to a successful conclusion by the Montrose Chamber of Commerce during its first year, and, taken as a whole, the Montrose Chamber of Commerce has put Montrose, Calif., on the map, and the residents of this town have a Chamber of Commerce to be proud of, and enough credit cannot be given to the retiring officers who have worked hard and faithfully, and especially J. L. Brown, the president, who has never ceased working to further the interests of Montrose and the Montrose Chamber of Commerce, and in appreciation for these services Mr. Brown was re-elected unanimously for the second year, as the guiding hand of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce.

The election results were: J. L. Brown, president; F. C. Coates, vice-president; W. C. Kaune, secretary; C. J. Reinhard, treasurer; Messrs. M. S. Collins, C. L. Mead, C. A. Haskins, A. W. Clark, W. J. Hickey, board of directors. The naming of committees and subcommittees was put over until the next meeting on the 4th of September, and in the meantime the committees heretofore appointed will continue to serve.

Plan Clean-up Week

Among the numerous matters transacted at this meeting and a very important matter was the appointing of a committee on "Clean-up Week," consisting of Messrs. Tolman Smith and Hopkins. Every resident of Montrose should feel it their duty to assist this committee and see that all of the lots are cleaned off. In addition to it being a fire prevention and sanitary, it beautifies the home town, and the Montrose Chamber of Commerce wants Montrose to stand out as the "shining light at the head of Verdugo road."

In honor to Mr. Walton, the man who laid out the town of Montrose, and a more beautiful spot he could not have selected, the circle at the head of Verdugo road, Montrose avenue and Honolulu avenue was designated as "Walton Square."

EAGLE ROCK

CONFERENCE OVER ZONING PROBLEMS

Donnell Montgomery Tells of L. A. Planning Body's Recent Session

Donnell Montgomery, secretary of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce, back from a week's session of the Western Summer School of Community Leaders, Stanford University, Palo Alto, reports attending a meeting of the Los Angeles City Planning Commission Tuesday night, August 7, as the official member from this section.

The commission, of which Gordon Whitnall is the director and guiding head, is much in need of some power by which it might enforce some of its recommendations, according to Mr. Montgomery, and is trying to get such a provision written into the new city charter.

At present its power is largely advisory, and the City Council can undo anything it may choose to do. Mr. Montgomery cites the example of St. Louis, which eight years ago, on adopting a new charter, gave its planning commission power to act. The result is that in the ensuing eight years the commission has improved twenty-five streets and has been of vast aid in the development of the city.

Zoning Problems

Reporting on the settlement of Eagle Rock's zoning problem, Mr. Montgomery states that within ten days this will be straightened out. At the recent meeting with local representatives, their recommendations, being the outgrowth of the July open forum meeting of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce, were accepted with the exceptions of Valley drive and Pearl street, the question there being a difference of opinion as to whether these should be Zone A or Zone B sections.

Mr. Montgomery, in commenting on his week at the Western Summer School of Community Leaders, in Palo Alto, stated the purpose of this institution as being to build up a school that would eventually give a degree showing a man as fitted to guide community activities, and that all interested in such work could derive great benefit by attending the yearly sessions.

This is the third year these sessions have been given, he said. They are put on under the auspices of the California Association of Commercial Secretaries, in conjunction with Stanford University, and are in charge of Dean E. A. Cottrell.

Eugene F. Sanders, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, was in attendance at the school, Mr. Montgomery said.

Among the many topics discussed at this school were methods of getting community work done, means of finance, how to get members for organizations, methods of securing publicity, advertising, disbursement of funds, municipal government and city planning.

Dr. Ray L. Wilbur, president of Stanford University, is reported by Mr. Montgomery as having addressed the school on "Public Health," while Col. E. A. Simmons, secretary of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, talked on how the $2,000,000 fund for the 1922 community chest had been raised, saying that the interest on the sum had more than paid the expenses incident to the campaign of raising it.
